Relief Burden Shifted to City Under New Law

OFFICIALS TO CONFER TODAY ON CHANGES

Plan Effective on March 15 Puts Problem Up to City and Madison Township.

ALL WITHOUT FUNDS

Marriott to Outline Latest Regulations; County to Keep Check of Records.

A new direct relief plan which will shift the major part of the relief burden from Richland county to the city of Mansfield, was to be set up this afternoon by city and county officials at a conference at the courthouse.

Ordered by state relief officials to comply with a new relief law effective March 15, the plan will make the city and Madison township responsible for administration costs and a part of the direct relief expense in their divisions, the amounts to be determined following today's meeting.

Confers In Columbus.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott, who conferred with state relief officials yesterday in Columbus, said he would outline provisions of the new law at today's session. He said the county probably will continue to administer state funds to the sub-divisions and will be required to establish a statistical department to keep relief [illegible]

The state auditor's office requires a pre-audit of relief accounts in the county to enable the state set-up to determine the amount of funds needed for relief each month.

"The county commissioners may have to name a chief statistician and a small staff of clerks to make up the monthly reports,' Marriott said, "but the clerks may also act as case investigators."

Meet At Courthouse.

Scheduled to meet in this afternoon's session at the courthouse were City Auditor Paul Kelley, County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, City Solicitor Marion D. Ward, jr., county commissioners, Prosecutor Marriott, and possibly Madison township officials.

The county, city and township are in a similar situation in regards to providing relief funds, none of them having any relief appropriation. Neither the city

Gets 10 Sundays In Jail Because He Hit His Wife

Because he struck his wife when she met him at the door when he returned home at 2 o'clock in the morning, Charles Lenhart, 499 South Main street, will spend the next 10 week-ends in city jail.

He was convicted on a charge of assault and battery when arraigned in municipal court yesterday. Mrs. Lenhart pleaded for leniency for her husband, who she said was the sole means of support of their family.

Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch told Lenhart that he would have to report to the police station at 6 p. m. on Saturday for the next 10 weeks to be locked up until 6 p. m. on Sunday.

The judge pointed out that failure to fulfill his sentence would lead to a term in the workhouse.

HUGHES SUPPLY WAREHOUSE HIT BY $7,500 FIRE

Short Circuit In Wiring Seen as Cause; Roof Ignited In Second Blaze.

A short circuit in electric wiring was blamed today for a $7,500 fire which swept through the warehouse of the Hughes Supply company, 128 West Sixth street, last night, destroying a part of the structure.

Firemen from two companies fought through a dense smoke to battle the blaze for more than an hour and saved a part of the warehouse and adjoining buildings.

Three other alarms were answered by firemen within a two-hour period this morning, one a home in East Mansfield and the other two garages.

Neighbor Sees Flames.

The Hughes fire was discovered shortly after the firm had closed at 5:30 p. m. yesterday by a neighbor who saw the smoke rolling from the roof and called the fire department.

Firemen from companies No. 1 and No. 2 under the direction of Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger laid two lines to the one-story building.

The blaze, which Seeburger said

PROBES 'FIX'

Racket Case Judge Tells of $25,000 'Bonus' Offer.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Common Pleas Judge Alva R. Corlett said today that he had received a "tip" during the extortion trial of John L. McGee and Donald A. Campbell, Cleveland labor leaders, that a $25,000 fund had been raised in an attempt to "fix" the jury.

Judge Corlett said the tip came through investigators for Safety Director Eliot Ness on Feb. 15, the second day of the trial. McGee and Campbell yesterday were sentenced to one to five years each for extorting $1,200 from Vernon Stouffer, chair restaurant executive, under threat of delaying a construction project.

The jurist said he ordered the jury sequestered because of the tip.

Stale Bread, Wrapped In Paper, Holds Spotlight In Moscow Court.

ASSUME FULL BLAME

Conspirators Admit Guilt, Ask No Mercy as Soviet Speeds 'Justice.'

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—To the witches' broth of murder and intrigue brewed at Soviet Russia's latest treason trial was added the new ingredient of superstition today as the defendants tumbled over one another to brand themselves with guilt.

The morning session ended with Prosecutor Andrei Y. Vishinsky questioning A. P. Rosengoltz, one of the 21 defendants, about a strange "talisman" found in his pocket when he was arrested.

It consisted of a stale, crumbling piece of bread wrapped in a ragged piece of paper, on which was written:

"May God be resurrected and his enemies smitten. Let his enemies fall by the arrows of his loyal servants. May God be praised."

With a sarcastic ring to his voice, Vishinsky asked:

"Why were you carrying that?"

"My wife put it there," Rosengoltz replied.

"And how long did you carry it?"

"About three months, I think."

"And just what," asked Vishinsky with a rising inflection, "was the idea of the stale bread?"

"I thought it would bring me luck."

Spectators Roar.

The courtroom roared at the discomfiture of Rosengoltz, former commissar of foreign trade.

Before Rosengoltz took the stand, V. A. Maximov, formerly secretary to Valeria Kuibeshev, chief of Russia's first five-year plan who was allegedly murdered as part of the Trotskyist conspiracy against the Stalin regime, admitted full responsibility for his superior's death.

"I was the key man of the plot to kill Kuibeshev," he said. "It was Mainlyhi who brought about his death. I purposely delayed calling doctors when his heart attacks occurred.

"I have no regrets for my action. I make no plea for mercy."

Two soviet physicians, once among the most eminent in the nation, admitted complicity in the "medical murders" of Maxim Gorky, famous Russian writer, and other victims, but blamed their plight on former Secret Police Chief Henry G. Yagoda.

First to testify today was Dr. D. D. Pletniov, famous heart specialist, who continued the fantastic story of slow poison and "undermining of health" detailed yesterday by L. G. Levin, former chief of the Kremlin hospital.

Widowed Mother Leaves to Be Near Plane Hunt Center

Mrs. Dirlam and Father Off to Fresno, Still Hoping Children May Be Found Alive.

While searching parties in California took up their task again today with renewed hope of finding the wrecked airliner which disappeared a week ago with nine persons aboard, the mother and grandfather of the two young Mansfielders who were aboard the ship, left Mansfield today by train for Fresno, center of the search.

Mrs. Jay N. Dirlam, mother of J. Tracy and Mary Lou Dirlam, who were on the missing plane, and her father, Rufus A. Tracy, expect to reach there the latter part of the week. They left Mansfield at 2 p. m.

Jay Dirlam, father of the children, who died Sunday without knowing anything about their disappearance, was buried yesterday in Mansfield cemetery, and his widow, frantic with worry but still hoping that by some miracle her children will be found alive, immediately made plans to rush to Fresno.

Daughter Stays Here.

Mrs. Dirlam and Mr. Tracy will join Rufus Tracy, jr., the latter's son, who went from his home in Salt Lake City to Fresno last Wednesday, the day after the plane disaster was reported. Sally Dirlam, a younger daughter of Mrs. Dirlam, remained here in care of relatives.

In Fresno this morning a forecast of cloudy weather but without rain or snow, heartened searchers for the plane, and Transcontinental and Western Airways officials expressed the hope that the clouds would lift long enough to permit an aerial survey of the Bass lake region.

The plans of Mrs. Dirlam and her father for remaining in California were indefinite, and will depend upon results of the search.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—(INS)—Inexplicable delay in effecting contact with the apparent kidnapers of 12-year-old Peter Levine today prompted two prominent residents of this metropolitan suburb to offer themselves as intermediaries.

The lad disappeared 13 days ago. An original reported ransom demand of $60,000 is said to have been trimmed down to $30,000 which the father, Murray Levine, has sought in vain to convey to the reputed abductors.

Rabbi Abraham Nowak and Philip Grabel, the latter a leading business man, today asked the New York Journal-American to publish their offers to act as go-betweens in the case.

B. & O. Allowed 90 Days to Install Flasher at Crossing

City officials today were notified by the state utilities commission that the Baltimore and Ohio railroad had been allowed 90 days to install flasher signal lights at the Bowman street crossing, scene of a fatal accident in January.

In a letter to Mayor Claude M. Hunter, the commission said they had asked the railroad to comply with the recommendation made by their inspector, W. T. Harrington. The recommendation asked that the B. & O. be allowed 90 days to make the installation voluntarily before the commission issue an order.

Harrington explained in his report that flasher lights were necessary at the crossing because of the numerous power lines and shade trees that made it difficult for motorists to observe the crossing when approaching down the steep grade from the south.

He also pointed out that a large number of pupils attending the John Simpson junior high school pass over the crossing daily and that in a 24-hour traffic check eight school buses had passed over the tracks.

The report also said that eight freight trains and four passenger trains cross Bowman street daily.

Surveys were made by the city at five other crossings which receive part-time protection after a check was made at the unprotected Bowman grade. All the data was turned over to Harrington.

SHELVE WATER PLANS AFTER 2-HOUR DEBATE

Council Committees Stymied by Lack of Funds, Defer Project for Woodland.

$10,000 TIES UP PROGRAM

Solons Find Ways to Raise $65,000 But Run Into Snag Trying to Get Rest.

City council's water and finance committees debated for two hours last night over the proposed Woodland water improvement plan, agreed that it should be undertaken but got exactly nowhere when they sought funds to finance the project and finally wound up by shelving the program.

After a discussion that had resolved itself into a problem of locating sufficient funds, the session adjourned with the recommendation from City Auditor Paul L. Kelley that action on the financing angle be deferred until a later date—possibly next year when mortgage bonds against the waterworks department will have been sufficiently decreased to enable the city to finance the complete Woodland project.

Unable to Complete Plan.

One thing that handicapped the committees was the failure to uncover $10,000 to properly complete a part of the project outlined by Councilman Fred Miller, chairman of the finance committee.

Miller presented a plan for Woodland that called for the expenditure of $65,000. And as a mode of financing he suggested the issuance of $25,000 in general bonds, $25,000 in mortgage revenue bonds and $15,000 to be taken from the unappropriated waterworks fund.

The improvement would bolster the pressure for 75 per cent of the Woodland area, he pointed out, and would include the construction of a tank tower and booster pumps at the reservoir, a 20-inch main on Cook road from the reservoir to Lexington avenue, and the continuance of the high capacity main on Lexington avenue to Glendale boulevard.

NEW YORK—Richard Whitney, former president and still a governor of the New York stock exchange, today was expected to agree to questioning by the assistant state's attorney general as federal and state probes into his stock deals were pushed by authorities.

Public hearings by the state attorney general's office were to open today under the state securities act while the securities exchange commission, federal regulatory body, opened a private investigation into the crash of the top-flight brokerage house. In addition, Whitney soon must answer to the exchange board of governors on charges of violating the code of business ethics.

The investigations were launched after the Whitney firm, one of America's biggest brokerage houses, announced bankruptcy. So far, Whitney has remained inac-

ROOSEVELT TO TAKE ACTION FOR SHOWDOWN

Norris Hints He'll Take Lead In Ouster Move If President Favors Such Step.

SAYS HE'LL SEEK 'FACTS'

Roosevelt Meeting Friday to Be Third Intervention Into Power Squabbles.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's determination to obtain a swift showdown in the quarrel among directors of the Tennessee Valley Authority led some observers today to forecast a shakeup in the three-man board.

The president ordered the directors to meet at the White House Friday morning. He told a press conference yesterday that the gathering would have one purpose—to get the facts behind charges and counter-charges that have split the TVA board wide open.

Would Lead Ouster.

Senator Norris (Ind., Neb.), author of the TVA act, evidenced a similar determination to settle the affair. He said that if Mr. Roosevelt's inquiry showed the desirability of removing "someone" from office he would consider initiating congressional ouster action.

Norris declared he believed removal of the entire board would not be necessary. Such a step has been proposed by Representative McLean (R., N. J.)

In a senate speech yesterday, Norris said that at one time he had hoped Chairman A. E. Morgan would realign, but had become convinced he would not do so. Morgan has been on one side of the controversy, and Directors David E. Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan on the other.

Mr. Roosevelt explained he had made no effort to find out whether he had power to force any resignation. At the capitol Norris said the TVA act vested that power in congress alone.

This is the third time the president has intervened in TVA affairs because of the three-year-old feud. The first was prior to Lilienthal's reappointment to the board, when statements made by Chairman Morgan about his fellow director led the president to inquire into Lilienthal's record.

Davey Charges G. O. P. Leader With 'Sham and Pretense.'

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Governor Davey today charged Sen. Verner E. Metcalf (R) Washington with "sham and pretense" in the introduction of resolutions calling for the discharge of four state employes during the final day of the legislative session.

Davey's statement questioned the sincerity of Metcalf saying:

"He introduced several resolutions calling for the dismissal of four state officials, even when their one-sided evidence did not reflect anything on their integrity . . . not one feeble effort was made to bring those resolutions to a vote. They were dirty political propaganda of the lowest sort . . ."

Metcalf has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

U. S. Holds Key to Peace, Needs Rest of World, Institute Told

America is the richest country in the world and as nearly self-sustaining as any of them, but it needs the rest of the world and holds the key to world peace, Allen D. Albert, lecturer and sociologist, said last night at Mansfield High school auditorium.

Albert was the last speaker in the Institute of International Understanding sponsored here by the Mansfield Rotary and University clubs. His topic was "Can Any Nation Live Unto Itself?"

"No nation ever has been able to mind its own business or live by itself, and the United States can't stand by and say it will not meddles in world affairs," Albert asserted.

Even if this country could be self-sustaining, it would still have one tenth of everything produced here to dispose of and it would bear the responsibility of promoting world leadership and raising the world standard of living, he asserted.

"Peace is a partnership product," he said, "and if there is to be world co-operation it will have to start from America. The world is making an ideal of America and waits on it for leadership."

Despite the widespread belief that the American people have developed an unique civilization of their own, almost everything they have was started in Europe or

Britain, Italy Map 'Swaps' for European Tranquillity

ENVOYS BARE OBJECTIVES IN 'DEAL' TALKS

Italian Diplomats Seeking New Mediterranean Policy, Embargo on Arms.

(By International News Service)

ROME—Whittled down demands and a series of political "swaps" were expected today at Britain and Italy got down to brass tacks bargaining in their negotiations which may determine the course of European history for decades to come.

Pushing forward with the talks that brought about resignation of Anthony Eden as British foreign secretary, representatives of Premier Mussolini and those of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain advised each other of the demands on which the negotiations will proceed.

Mediterranean Key Point.

The talks are being carried on by the Earl of Perth, British ambassador, and Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano and their aids. It was learned Italy's chief objectives are:

1—Limitation of the British navy in the Mediterranean to a level of parity with the Italian navy.

2—Guarantees Britain will clamp down on shipments of arms and munitions from British Kenya to Ethiopian rebels and restriction of migrations between Ethiopia and British African territories.

3—An agreement covering Anglo-Italian relations in the Red Sea basin.

4—A commercial accord governing trade relations between Britain and Ethiopia, with Britain to receive the status of a favored nation in the Ethiopian market.

Britain's major aims are:

1—A pledge that Mussolini will respect the territorial integrity and sovereignty of Austria and Hungary and keep out of any deal with Germany to divide central Europe between them.

2—Termination of Italian intervention in the Spanish civil war, and a guarantee that Italy will seek no territory in Spain of the Spanish Mediterranean islands.

3—"Substantial" withdrawl of Italian troops from Italian Libya.

Would Give Guarantee.

International News Service learned that Italy is ready to guarantee continued independence of Austria and Hungary in exchange for naval parity with Britain in the Mediterranean, scene of sporadic tension between London and Rome ever since the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Efforts will be made also to revive the "gentleman's agreement" between Italy and Britain regarding spheres of influence in the Mediterranean.

Murder Hinted In Mystery Death of Illinois Beauty

DELAVAN, Ill.—(INS)—The question of whether beauteous Mrs. Collison Crabb was a murder victim instead of a suicide was officially raised for the first time here today.

Coroner Nelson Wright brought the matter into the open in questioning of James Crabb, husband of the 19-year-old bride of five weeks, when he asked bluntly:

"Would it have been possible for someone to kill your wife?"

Young Crabb, who said he was in the bathroom early last Tuesday when his wife was shot, answered:

"I wouldn't know about that."

With his testimony, the coroner adjourned the inquest until Saturday.

Officers testified they had found the gun, an old frontier model belonging to young Crabb, jammed between the mattress and the head of the beadstead with the butt very visible. There were no finger prints on the weapon, police asserted.

SUES TO HALT LIQUOR HAULING

Woman Attorney Files Suit as Taxpayer to Dissolve Shaw Transport Unit.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A taxpayer's suit was brought in common pleas court today to compel the state liquor department to dissolve its liquor hauling contract with Shaw Transport, Inc., which does not actually handle the liquor.

Agnes B. Dickinson, Columbus attorney, who filed the suit, alleged that Shaw Transport had obtained a $350,000 "rake-off" from the state, and asked a judgment for that amount. She cited testimony given before the senate investigating committee that Shaw Transport held a contract to handle the liquor for 17½ cents a case, but that it sublet it to the United States Trucking lines for 11½ cents a case.

John Nolan, prominent Ohio Democrat of Steubenville, Burt Kimberling and Robert M. Shaw, incorporators of Shaw Transport, and Liquor Director James W. Miller were named defendants in the injunction suit.

Mrs. Dickinson, an assistant to former Atty Gen. Gilbert Bettman, last week filed suit attacking the validity of a ruling by former Atty. Gen. John W. Bricker that legislative committees expire with sine die adjournment of the general assembly.

The senate committee, which criticized the contract with Shaw Transport, ended its investigations when the legislature adjourned Feb. 28.

CRISIS DUE TODAY FOR GIRL WHO TOOK GAMBLE WITH DEATH

(By United Press)

KANSAS CITY, Mo.— Sylva Eugenia Davis was conscious and smiling today after a dangerous operation in which she risked her life with the hope that it would enable her to walk and use her arms for the first time since she was born 20 years ago.

The postoperative crisis was due today. By night, her surgean expected to know whether she would live or die. Whether she would ever be able to rise from the wheelchair where she learned to write, read books, paint and draw without the use of her arms, could not be known for weeks.

Her physician, who performed the rare spinal operation and laid bare the fragile nerves leading from her brain to the voluntary muscles of her arms and legs, said that Miss Davis was slightly improved and that her early return to consciousness was "a favorable indication of successful recovery."

The girl's blight, caused by an injury at birth, had left her with limbs that dangled uselessly but which developed in size and muscle as she grew and gave her a body that appeared normal. The surgeon, who insisted on anonymity, believed that the chances of givng at least partial locomotion to her limbs were worth the risk involved.

The risk was taken yesterday at St. Luke's hospital. Today, outside the door of her room, Miss Davis' father and mother stood vigil. They had been there all night.

The drone of the electrical respirator, wherein the girl lay, carried past the closed door and the steady, ominous beat reassured the parents 20 times a minute that the breath and life of their daughter was being maintained.

CLAIM INCREASE WON'T REMOVE ECONOMIC PERIL

Commission's Order Hikes Income $274,000,000 Yearly; Roosevelt Calls Parley.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Approval of higher freight rates by the interstate commerce commission fell so far short of needs, rail executives said today, that the nation's railroads remain in a perilous financial condition.

"We are glad to have what they gave us," said J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, "but we're disappointed."

The commission's decision, handed down late yesterday, gave the railroads permission to raise most rates from 5 to 10 per cent. Commissioner Joseph B. Eastman estimated the additional revenue would amount to $274,000,000 a year.

Map Future Action.

Pelley said the general freight rate schedule had been boosted only 5 or 6 per cent. Railroad spokesmen had asked for a 15 per cent increase, but Pelley said the requested changes actually would have lifted the rates only 12.9 per cent.

"Whether we'll go back to the commission again with another petition for higher freight rates hasn't been decided," he said, adding that the permitted raises would be put into effect as quickly as possible. They may be applied on 10 days' notice.

President Roosevelt announced he would hold a railroad conference at the White House next week to consider the whole question of railroad finances.

With certain exceptions, the I. C. C. authorized the railroads to increase freight rates by 10 per cent. It stipulated, however, that increases granted on many commodities last fall must be included in that percentage.

Increases of 5 per cent were granted on the following commodities:

Agricultural products, except tropical fruit; animals and animal products, except horses and mules; lumber, shingles and lath; cottonseed oil and vegetable oils, except linseed oil.

Anthracite coal rates were increased 10 cents a ton, or about 5.9 per cent.

Increases were specifically refused on bituminous coal, lignite, iron ore, fresh milk and cream, and refrigeration service.

TALKS FRIDAY

Columbus Man to Explain Retirement Plan.

Wilson E. Hoge, Columbus, secretary of the State Employes' Retirement system, will speak at the Richland county courthouse at 7:30 p. m. Friday on the benefits of the retirement plan for city and county employes which becomes effective April 15.

Arthur S. Beck, deputy county auditor, who will be in charge of the meeting, held little information regarding the operation of the new state law had come to the county and that Hoge had been invited here to explain its provisions to the approximately 250 employes who are eligible to participate.

All appointive public employes who are not already participating in a pension plan may join the system by contributing 4 per cent of their salaries per month.

Employed who do not file written exemptions within 90 days after the law is effective automatically become members of the system.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

No Need for This Fight.

THE NEED for reorganization of the federal government is not disputed. New Dealers, anti-New Dealers, Democrats and Republicans agree it should be done. For years there has been no real difference of opinion as to the need, which, of course, is greater now than ever before.

In the last four years the expansion of the government has been such that there exists today an almost impenetrable jungle of overlapping and duplicating agencies, the functions and number of which no one has clearly in mind. Under such circumstances, it would seem that the effort of the president to improve this situation would have no opposition. Nor would it had he gone about it in a different way. It would have been the easiest thing in the world for him to have gotten together on a sound scheme with the senators fighting the present proposals, chief of whom is Senator Byrd. Though the president's reorganization announcement in March, 1936, clearly was intended to blanket Senator Byrd, who two months before had secured the passage of a reorganization resolution and the appointment of a special committee, he welcomed the president's commission and declared the best results could be secured under his leadership.

CLEARLY, the logical and simple course for the president was to utilize Senator Byrd, who had made himself an authority on this subject, as an aid in carrying through the reorganization plan. That, it seems, is what he would have done had reorganization in the interests of economy and efficiency been his sole purpose. That, it seems, was the only sensible method of procedure. And it was easy. Senator Byrd was ready to co-operate and there would have been no fight. But that is exactly what Mr. Roosevelt did not do. On the contrary, first he took unusual steps to make it certain that Senator Byrd had nothing to do with his plan, and, second, he sponsored, a year ago, a bill so startling in its nature as to leave no alternative but to fight for Mr. Byrd and others who hold, first, that complete centralization of power in the hands of the executive is wrong in theory and worse in practice, and, second, that any reorganization which does not save money is absurd.

THOUGH some of its worst features have been eliminated, the president's proposals now pending are subject to indictment on five important points, none of which need have been presented, yet, being presented, compel opposition—first, instead of saving money, the new scheme will increase costs and, as Byrd points out, "freeze" public expenditures at the huge sum of eight billion a year; second, instead of decreasing the number of jobholders, it will increase them—for example, providing the president with nine instead of three secretaries; third, in abolishing the office of comptroller general it substitutes an accounting system more subject to executive control; fourth, it makes changes in the civil service setup which put it under political control; fifth, it confers upon the president powers so enormous that he could frustrate the will of congress and do practically anything he pleases not specifically prohibited in the bill.

UNDER this bill, for example, the president could transfer the forestry service from agriculture to the interior department, or he could wipe it out of existence, or he could put it under the RFC, or he could put the RFC under the new department of welfare. There is, in fact, no limit to what he could do. The fight will be made on all these provisions, particularly on the "powers of the president" section. Because there has been no dramatization of this bill, as was the case with the court-packing proposal, no great public interest has been aroused, and it may be that the weight of the White House is enough to drive it through. Yet those best posted believe that this measure is second only in its baleful character to the court-packing bill, to which it originally was the companion piece. The most extraordinary thing of all is that the president could so easily accomplish a much more effective reorganization, which would cut the costs of government $100,000,000 a year, for which he could have had complete credit and at the same time avoid a bruising fight—if only he had chosen to co-operate. Co-operation was so clearly called for that the reasons he refused are, to say the least, mysterious.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Pete came from the Galapagos islands to Hollywood and the more abundant life.

Pete has earned it, his manager will tell you. The manager, Ralph T. Luxford, has earned it, too. Or did you ever try to train a penguin?

Pete recently celebrated his third birthday as a personage unique in Hollywood, perhaps in the world. At least Luxford knows of no other trained penguin anywhere, and certainly no other in pictures.

Luxford is as striking an individual as Pete. He—Luxford, not Pete—wears a fringe of old-fashioned beard, stretching from ear to ear by way of his chin, and on his head is a visored sailor's cap, bearing the inscription, "Penguin Pete." He arrives at the studio each day with Pete on one arm, and a large thermajug, labeled "Pete's Dinnerpail" on the other.

In the jug are morsels upon which Pete, a stern dieter, insists. He likes only frozen fish, and eats only the filets. Luxford obliges, as part of his minute attentions to Pete's health. The life expectancy of the average captive penguin, he says, is from six to fourteen months. But with the sort of care Luxford gives him, Pete should live from six to 20 years.

When Pete works before the cameras—and "Little Miss Broadway" with Shirley Temple marks his sixth cinema appearance—he gets $100 a day. Between pictures he luxuriates in his penthouse palace—eight feet above his private swimming pool — at Hermosa Beach. It was in Hermosa Beach that Luxford, formerly a sailor but then a florist and pet-dealer, used to have Pete pull a little cart advertising his store—and it was there that Slim Summerville saw Pete and advised a Hollywood career. Pete has appeared in "The Big Shot," "Stand-In," "The Goldwyn Follies" and "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back."

Because of Pete's unique value, Luxford has the bird insured for $5,000. Lloyds of London insisted that Pete's footprints be recorded as a prerequisite to issuing the policy. No other penguinly demise will collect. The studio also has Pete insured, for $50,000.

BLIND TEACHER GIVES DEMONSTRATION TALK

Miss Edith Sperry, Seeing Eye Dog Appear Before Members of Tourist Club, Guests; Speaks on Therapeutic Work: Paper Read.

MISS EDITH SPERRY, blind teacher, Miss Ruie Edwards, her co-worker, and a four and one-half year old dog, Beauty, presented an unusual program yesterday at the Women's Club for the benefit of members of the Tourist club and their guests. Miss Sperry and Miss Edwards do what is known as home teaching. The dog, Beauty, who was trained at the Seeing Eye school in Morristown, N. J., is the blind teacher's constant companion

Following the luncheon which was served at two long tables in the dining room of the club, Miss Sperry gave a brief lecture on her work and on the training of her dog A question period followed Miss Sperry and Miss Edwards travel through 18 counties doing acult education work among the blind Headquarters are at Newark Their work is that of occupational therapy and they teach virtually every type of handicraft, reading, writing and typing

Miss Sperry exhibited the "Reader's Digest" printed in Braille and showed the perforated slate which the blind use for writing. The speaker stressed the fact that the problems of the blind teacher are much the same as those of any other teacher. Her main problem is getting the adult person into a receptive mood to learn crafts or processes which will make him partially or entirely self-supporting "Man's Best Friend: The Dog," was the title of the paper given by Mrs R W Cellars. In her discussion, Mrs Cellars told about the distinctive characteristics of the dog and the peculiarities which make him one of man's best friends.

Dogs have attached themselves to man and assist him in many of his daily tasks, Mrs. Cellars explained She then spoke of some of the animal's characteristics such as reasoning power, premonition, conscience, scent sense of humor, sense of duty and honor, sense of justice, and protective instinct Many of these peculiarities she illustrated with anecdotes of dogs.

Among the kinds of work dogs do in addition to guiding the blind is their use as rescue crews in the Alps, as police dogs, for hauling loads in various countries, and in war.

Mrs J W Galbraith and Mrs Weldon P Close were hostesses for the luncheon which was served at tables decorated with orchid sweet peas, yellow rose buds and acacia Mrs. R. F. Miller, president, presided.

EDUCATIONAL HEAD TALKS AT CARPENTER

A. T. Sneeringer Discusses Crime Cause at P. T. A. Meeting; Nominating Committee Elected; Music and Dancing on Program.

A. T. SNEERINGER, superintendent of schools at Ohio state reformatory, spoke last night to members of the Carpenter school P. T. A. on the general subject of the inmates of the institution. "About 63 per cent of the inmates are between the ages of 16 and 23," he stated.

He pointed out that there are 63 crimes for which boys are sent to the institution, but the most frequent offense is operating an automobile without the owner's consent The majority of the inmates come from counties having the largest cities.

Disciplinary measures were explained and Mr. Sneeringer explained the three major reasons why boys become criminals. His reasons were broken homes, schooling and lack of interest in the social and religious forces which endeavor to help young people. "The greatest preventative," he said, "is better discipline."

Mrs. Edward Nixon, Mrs. Maurice Stretch and Mrs. John Crouse were named to the nominating committee during the business meeting and a report of the council meeting was given by Mrs. Nixon. Announcement was made of the Northcentral Council of Parent Teacher associations to be held in Marion April 6. Joseph R. Drumm, president, was in charge.

—Advice—

Should She Go Out With Engaged Man?

By VIRGINIA LEE

"My Dear Miss Lee: I would appreciate very much your advice on this question:

"I am in love with a young man and he says he loves me, but he was engaged to another girl before I met him and still is. He says he is trying to break the engagement, but she hangs after him.

"Should I continue going with him while he's engaged or should I insist that he break the engagement if he wishes me to go with him? Also what advice would you give toward breaking such an engagement, if that is what you advise?

"The other day he asked me if I would like to meet that girl. Would it be better to meet her or not meet her?

"TROUBLESOME."

I think you should not go with a man who is engaged to another woman any more than you should go with a man who is married. He belongs to her and you have no right to go with him. It is embarrassing and humiliating to her to have people tell her that they saw her fiance out with another girl. He should absolutely break the engagement before he showers his attentions on another girl. I know that this sometimes is difficult when the girl in question still loves him and wants to hold him, but it is his duty to do it, nevertheless.

I also think it would be a good idea to tell the young man that you would like to meet the other girl in his life. Possibly she seems unreal to you now, and if you met you would see what type of person she is, and could act accordingly. If she is a decent sort whom you like, you might feel you had better step out of the picture. On the other hand, if you thought them definitely unsuited, you could encourage him to make the break right away. There is only one way to do it. Tell her he no longer loves her and that he cannot marry her.

Of course yours would be a difficult position, as you love him, but I know you could be a good sport, even if you had to decide against yourself.

MARY L.: Honestly, you have me puzzled. You evidently appeal to a part of this man's nature that his wife doesn't touch. Yet, the wife, too, must satisfy another side of him. My dear, every girl who ever loved a married man says the same thing: "Why won't the wife leave when she knows I love him and he loves me?" Well, very often the man loves his wife too, and would not be willing for her to give him a divorce. And it is difficult for a wife, who has heretofore held her husband's love and made a home for him over many years, to think that it really is true that he prefers someone else to her.

I am very sorry for you, and yet I wonder if more heartaches won't come to you if you persist upon carrying on this affair than if you broke it off. You are lonely, of course, and feel you do not attract other men, so you cling to him. If you had led a normal girl's life, with boy friends and such, he would not probably have appealed to you.

You are sure of your physical condition, are you? And could you be helped by either surgery or psychiatry? Wonder if talking to this man's wife would help. It depends upon what type of woman she is, I suppose, whether a broad-minded person or not. Would he consider marrying you if his wife would divorce him?

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, March 10.

An active, adventurous but tricky day is foretold by the ruling planets. There are signs of a sudden change, travel or re-arrangement of affairs, possibly incident to a death, loss or financial catastrophe. Be alert to all sorts of money complications or loans, and do not place too much confidence either in the judgment of friends or in your own.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively year, but not an active one, in connection with progress or pleasure. There may be loss, sorrow or bereavement at the root of such activity, with travel, change, strange contacts and conditions. Money seems imperiled, as does property. Do not make loans and be alert to peculiar or suspicious circumstances. Your own judgment may be befogged or visionary and that of your friends not too reliable. Postpone vital decisions when possible.

A child born on this day may have a rather storm-tossed nature, with tendencies to change, adventure and enterprise, but with rather dubious financial success. This may incite morbid and depressed reactions and grouchiness.

With a favorable season lawns can be made in the spring. It is important to sow the grass seed just as early as possible, because it must germinate and start into growth before warm weather comes. As a rule the quietest time of day is in the early morning. Therefore, that time is recommended for the sowing of the seed. Of course, an even distribution is necessary and this can be obtained by scattering the seeds, first lengthwise and then crosswise of the plot. Before any seed sowing is done the ground must be thoroughly raked over and level. And it does not pay to use any but the very best seed.

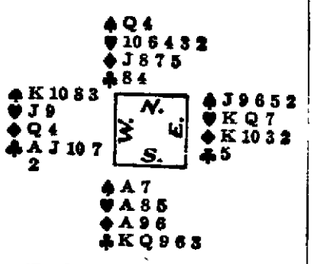
"The Authority on Authorities"

BIDDING ON INFERENCE

Fine players do not make the weak immediate overcalls so often stuck in by the average players, who frequently find themselves badly beaten when the player at the left has the remaining strength and doubles. Since they pass fair hands at the left of an opening bid, their partners must protect them when the opponents drop the auction at a low stage. This can be done with a measure of safety, as the passing opponents enable the last bidder to infer a certain amount of strength opposite him.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

After a pass by East, South started the bidding on this deal with 1-Club, West passed, North called 1-No Trump, East passed again and South bid 2-Clubs.

When West and North failed to bid over the 2-Clubs, East inferred that his partner must hold something in high cards, so he doubled. West responded with a bid of 2-Spades, which East took to 4-Spades.

Because all of the high cards were spotted, it was a simple matter to make the contract, with the loss of one trick each in spades, hearts and diamonds.

THEATER

FEBRUARY was a bad month for film marriages. Stan Laurel and his new Russian bride broke up and made up oftener than Lupe Valez and Johnny Weissmuller ever did . . . Mrs. Luis Alberni divorced the character actor . . . Nunnally Johnson, writer, lost a wife by way of the courts, and it took Alice White only five minutes to divorce Syd Bartlett . . . Comedian Clyde Cook filed a cross petition to his wife's divorce suit . . . . Fay Wray and John Monk Saunders, and Pauline Starke and George Sherwood announced separations. Relatives of stars alone made it a banner month for court proceedings, with top notch stars involved. Martha Raye's father sued for an accounting of her earnings before she was of age; Eleanore Whitney's father sued for an allowance; the grandmother of Tommy Kelly, the new Tom Sawyer, sued for an allowance; and Freddie Bartholomew, the beleagured child star, was relieved of paying his relatives $20,000 this year so that he can scrape up enough money to pay his income tax.

If You Find It.

"Gold Is Where You Find It," all Technicolar film with George Brent, Olivia de Havilland is scheduled for the Ohio theater for the last half of the week. Based on the best selling novel by Clements Ripley, it is the story of feud, now a high light in California's history, between the wheat ranchers and the hydraulic miners who came into the state in the 1870's. The wheat ranchers did much to stabilize the country after the wild gold rush of '49, and they were beginning to find their own "gold" in wheat when the hydraulic miners and Eastern capital come in, and through the new methods in mining, washed down tons of soil over the wheat fields, causing millions of dollars in damage. The feud was a bitter one and ended dramatically. The large cast includes Claude Rains, John Litel, Margaret Lindsay and Barton McLane.

Ambitions Boomerang.

Martin Flavin's dramatic tale of a politically ambitious warden who finds life behind penitentiary walls goes deeper than human desires, provides the theme for the picture "Penitentiary" which opens tomorrow at the Madison for three days. Walter Connolly plays the man who has his eyes set on the governorship, To further his political interests as district attorney he sends a man to the penitentiary who had been involved in an accidental killing. Six years later when he takes the position as warden and brings his young daughter to the state's prison with him, his ruthless ambitions serve as a boomerang. John Howard and Jean Parker portray the convict and the warden's daughter. Robert Barrat is also in the cast.

Balanced Program.

The Majestic balances its program for the last three days of the week with one dramatic, sombre play and a romantic musical comedy, both with high ranking stars. The former picture is a reissue of one of Paul Muni's best pictures, "Bordertown," in which Bette Davis co-stars with him. It is a sordid story of a youth who fights against his background and social status to win the girl he loves. His efforts are futile when a woman decides that if she can't have him, no one else shall. Margaret Lindsay is seen as the society beauty whose desire to play with fire brings her to a tragic ending. Dick Powell in "The Singing Marine" is the other attraction.

Real Life Story.

Paul Muni's greatest picture to date, as well as his latest one, is "Life of Emile Zola," which the Ritz offers through Thursday. The picture is one of the ten being considered by the Motion Picture Academy for this year's award for the best production of 1937. Muni plays the crusading French writer, Zola, whose fiery writings and pamphlets were responsible for liberating Capt. Dreyfus from Devil's Island. The pictured story is authentic and faithful to details of the real life story. The second feature is "Courage of The West" with Bob Baker and Lois January, a story of the caravans which brought gold from the West to the Union army during the Civil war.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

There was something more terrifying to me in Dicky's almost nonchalant advice not to let rust get on the bolts and chains I had ordered for the hotel apartment than in all the fearful conjectures I had made as to the reason for Philip Verrizen's elaborate precautions. But I knew better than to show my uneasiness. He was treating the thing in a matter-of-fact way and I knew that he would be annoyed beyond measure by any exaggeration of mine.

I knew something else, also, and rested in the knowledge. His winsome, orphaned niece is very dear to Dicky, and I knew that he would be watching Philip Veritzen "on his own" with eyes distinctly hawklike, and that he would be in the offing ready to give me any aid I needed

With this assurance hugged to my heart, I schooled my voice to composure.

"I am so relieved you think everything is all right," I said. "No doubt my fears are distinctly farfetched. But I am also glad you approve of my being watchful and vigilant."

Dicky In Hurry.

"You'd be that anyway," he said with a grin, "whether I approved, or scouted the necessity for looking out. But, as it happens, I do approve, and if you ever get a bit jumpy, send out an SOS for me and I'll come arunning."

He stretched his arms above his head, then rose from his chair

"Is there naything more you want to get off your chest?" he said, and again I saw his eye go swiftly to the clock on the mantel

"Not a thing," I forced myself to say calmly, although my primitive instinct was to jump to the door, bar it, and demand to know where he was going.

"Then I think I'll amble along," he said, bending to kiss me. How I managed to return it warmly, I do not know, but some hidden reserve of poise came to my rescue, and I think Dicky suspected nothing either then or during my leisurely progress with him to the door.

"When shall we see you again?" I queried perfunctorily as he opened the door.

He hesitated oddly.

"I don't just know," he said at last. "I'm fearfully busy, and so will you two be, but I'll keep in touch with you, probably see you almost every day sometime."

He took a step down the hall, then returned to the door, still with that oddly hesitant manner upon him.

"If you want me, at any time," he said, "call the studio. I'll be there most all the time, and will arrange to have someone answer the telephone and take a message for me. But if you don't mind, I'd rather not have either you or Mary call the magazine at any time. I'll explain later; I haven't time now. But just keep off that wire."

From somewhere I pumped up the strength to answer him casually.

"I'll remember," I said, "and I'll tell Mary. Good night."

He kissed me again and I waited until he entered the elevator before closing the door and going back to my chair into which I slumped with the feeling that I could not stand erect another second.

Madge Perplexed.

Why, why, was I not to call the art magazine of which he was co-owner with Edith Fairfax? If Edith were in the city, I could understand his prohibition, for Edith was almost maniacal in her hatred of me. But she had not yet come back to New York. I was certain of that. Lillian was "attending to Edith's case," as she herself expressed it, and I knew she would have told me if Edith were headed northward. I don't know how long I sat pondering over Dicky's odd request before the shrilling of the telephone sent me to the desk. The voice of the night operator spoke crisply.

"Is Mr. Graham there? Will you kindly put him on the telephone, please?"

When making custard pies, satisfactory results may be obtained if the undercrust is partially cooked before the custard is poured into it. Pastry needs a stronger heat than custard to bake it.

Urges Women To Have Other Interest

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

Time was when women were told to be "silent in the churches" and every other public place. Now nearly every mother and father has the opportunity to speak in public. Most parents belong to some club or group and, to practically all of them, come times when they may take part in the business deliberations of the organization or present something on the program.

Many are the knees of women that have trembled, even in the days when only the owners of the knees knew about it.

Next Wednesday afternoon you must make a two-minute talk on the new baby clinic of the neighborhood before your home missionary society, or club, or P. T. A. You never have done such a thing. How are you going to make the speech? You lie awake o' nights worrying about it. When you rise on Wednesday morning you may be blessed by a severe cold so that you can, with good conscience, escape the ordeal. Or, all well, you may show up at the appointed time and say your piece. You surprise yourself and your friends at the way you have succeeded. You were just lucky if you made no other preparation than to fret about the task. Perhaps you were wiser. You sat down several days before the event and wrote down exactly what you were going to say, timed yourself by the watch to make sure that it was not too long. Then you memorized it entirely or in part.

Needs Outside Interest.

A mother who has faithfully looked after the home and the children needs something outside the home at times for healthy self-expression. Mothers' clubs afford such opportunities.

In spite of your self-consciousness, make yourself get into the game at your earliest opportunity, and when a discussion is on express yourself, if you have something to say.

It is a great art to be able to speak always to the point, to say clearly and distinctly in the fewest possible words what you wish to say in public, or in private conversation.

You will get peculiar personal help from accomplishments in speaking freely before a group or with other individuals outside the home.

RANDOM SHOTS

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor

WHILE not having figured very prominently in basketball eliminations in recent years, Mansfield high school teams have compiled a fairly decent tournament record during the past 15 years.

When Coach Russ Murphy's Tygers go to Sandusky Friday night to engage Bellevue in a district semi-final encounter, it will mark the fifth time in the last 15 years that they have advanced to the final rounds.

It has been only in recent years that the Tygers have found tournament competition stiff, and this winter the Men of Murphy seem to have broken the "jinx" which has followed them in the eliminations.

Mansfield may never get beyond the semi-finals in this year's event, but Murphy at least has the satisfaction of knowing that the Tygers are not destined to become permanent first and second game victims.

In the 15-year-history, Mansfield teams have won the district championship twice, but never a regional title.

Until a few years ago, the district winners and runners-up were forced to compete in regional tournaments before qualifying for the state tournament.

The regional affair was eliminated by a re-arrangement of districts. Now the teams that win the district tournaments go directly to the state finals.

Advances Without Winning Title.

THE year Mansfield advanced to the state elimination it failed to win either the district or regional tournaments. Mansfield qualified for advancement in each tournament by finishing as runner-up.

The team was the 1926-27 edition, which included Courtney, Bride, Hall, Martin, Isaly, Garver and the McMullens.

It was the first Mansfield team since 1919 to reach the state classic. The 1919 quintet, which included Johnny Coss, Charley Nail and Cy Sotherland, bowled over Barberton, Wauseon, Galion, Fostoria and Sandusky to reach the semi-finals

Mansfield was eliminated by Cleveland East Tech, which bowed to Dayton Stivers in the finals.

Murphy's 1937 hoopsters waded through Tiffin Columbian and Fremont before succumbing to Bucyrus in the finals of the district tournament.

In the reginal at Findlay, Mansfield obtained revenge by toppling Bucyrus in the first game. The Tygers victimized Bowling Green in the semi-finals, and fell before Toledo Waite, 32 to 26, in the finals.

The Tygers faced Dover in their first game in the state tourney, and lost, 23 to 16. Dover won the state title that year, trimming Toledo Waite, 23 to 21, in the finals.

Tygers Also Won Crown In 1926.

MANSFIELD also won the district crown the year before, defeating Sandusky in the finals, but it was beaten in the first round of the regional by Wauseon.

The last time the Tygers advanced as high as the semi-finals in the district was in 1931 at Bucyrus Mansfield was eliminated by Shelby.

In 1929, the Tygers won their last district title, but failed to get past the second round in the regional, dropping out of play in a game with Lima St. Rose after defeating Celina in a first round tilt

Incidentally, the last time Mansfield and Friday's foe, Bellevue, tangled in a tournament game was in 1923, Bellevue winning, 20 to 18.

Mansfield protested the game because of spotty officiating, but, of course, nothing resulted to change the outcome.

First Lutheran and Park Avenue Baptist quintets chalked up victories last night at the Y. M. C. A. to continue in a tie for first place in the hectic Church Class B league race.

The Lutherans dumped the lowly B'Nai Jacob club, 59 to 15, while the Baptists had to break loose with a last-half rally to down a stubborn St. Johns outfit, 29 to 20.

Led by VanGeen, who tipped in 12 points, the Lutherans limited the cellar club to only four points in the opening half to take a commanding 17 to 4 lead.

The Baptist combine, trailing 10 to 7, at halftime, suddenly came to life after the intermission and registered 10 points while blanking its rivals to grab a 17 to 10 lead. Rayburn was high-point man for the Baptists with 10 points.

In the other games, Mayflower walloped Central M. E., 40 to 15, the Christians edged First M. E., 13 to 10 and the United Presbyterians defeated South Main, 32 to 29.

Sports, Elks Vie Last Time This Season In Top City League Tilt Tonight.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THE Elks club has its last chance tonight to make its season a success.

All year the Elks have been trying to dump the crack Yuncker Sports club in City Class A league competition, but so far have been unable to accomplish the feat.

Collide at 8 p. m.

The Elkmen tackle the Sports in the headliner on the weekly program at Senior high at 8 p. m. today as the league swings into its third and final round.

A victory for the Elks would place the club in an excellent spot to annex the third round championship and force the Yuncker club into a play-off for the title. In the two rounds played, the Elks came in second, a game behind the Sports.

In their first meeting, the Sports emerged with a two-point victory, and then when it looked as though the Elks had an excellent chance taking the undefeated leaders in the next meeting, the Yuncker outfit won, however, 31 to 19.

The fast-stepping Elks outfit will be at full strength for the tussle. Manager Jerry King will start Russ Hoff and Freddie Lewis at the forwards, either George Hummel or Jimmy Wallace at center and Noel Morgan and Gene Brandon at the guard posts.

This lineup gives the Elks a sharpshooting aggregation to toss against the classy Sports. Three of the Elks outfit have set individual scoring records this season. Lewis established the season's high mark last week, collecting 28 points against the Canzols. The former record of 16 points was held by Brandon, who topped Hoff's record of 14 points.

Westies Face Oils.

In tonight's opening attraction, the Westinghouse Electrics will attempt to get off on the right foot against the dangerous Mack Pure Oils.

The Oils have won only one league tilt, but have forced the leaders to the limit on several occasions.

Vern Jones' aggregation will be at full strength for the first time in a month tonight with the return to service of Steve Voelker, veteran center.

The Ira D. Ling Canzols are idle tonight.

Rex Billiards Can Win Title

The Rex Billiards can win the Senior basketball league championship Thursday night at the Friendly House.

Sporting a game lead in the race, the Cuemen face the runner-up Benny Hi Notes in the third game on the league's closing program.

The Cuemen cinched at least a share of the title last week, and now have only to turn back the Hi Notes to win the crown outright. A win for the Notes will throw the title into a two-way tie.

In Thursday's opening gome at 6.30 p. m., the Mansfield Athletic Supply club faces the third-place Blue Goose outfit, while the Dinger Independents tackle the Zeigler Independents in the game preceding the championship battle.

Unbeaten Teams Play At Ontario Saturday.

The undefeated Yuncker Sports, present leaders in the City Class A league race, face another real test Saturday night when they face the unbeaten Henry Sohloans on the Ontario high hardwood.

Sporting an impressive record of 13 consecutive triumphs, the Sports will put their record on the block before a club that has defeated many classy aggregations this season.

The tilt will top a two-game program. The affair is scheduled for 8 p. m.

SCRANTON, Pa.—Tony Rock 144 Mayfield Pa. and Wildcat O'Connor, 144, Scranton drew, (10).

PERSONNEL OF ALL-STAR CHURCH TEAMS SELECTED

Six Clubs to Provide Cage Entertainment at Y Friday Announced by Cram.

THE personnel of all-star teams to provide the basketball entertainment on the special Boosters and Visitors program at the Y. M. C. A. this week was announced today by Bud Cram, Y physical director.

Three games involving all-star teams of the three Church leagues are billed Friday night, the first tilt starting at 7 p. m.

The games were originally scheduled Saturday, but they were moved ahead a day by C. F. Rayburn, chairman of the event, after a conference with team coaches.

Members of the six teams all-star teams were selected by a ballot of fans attending regular Church league games. Each club consists of 10 players.

Named to coach the teams are Ed Gibson and Harry Lantz, Class A; Charles Ray and Chester Swank, Class B, and C. F. Rayburn and Robert Davis, Class C.

The personnel of the all-stars teams follow:

Celebrate In Last Contest

Simpson Cagers Hand Lacing to Hayesville, 67-8.

Simpson junior high school representatives in the Bi-county league closed their championship season in impressive fashion by toppling Hayesville, 67 to 8, on the loser's court yesterday.

Led by Hammer, who hung up 20 points, the Simpsonites toyed with their hosts to win as they pleased.

Coach Bob DeHaven's athletes held a 24 to 6 lead at the half, and limited Hayesville to two points in the second half while registering 43.

Thinks of 'Buck' Gehrig, Pulls Up Lame.

ST. PETERSBURG — (AP) — Lefty Gomez, the New York Yankees' star southpaw who is expected to oppose Dizzy Dean to start the grapefruit league season Sunday, has an adequate explanation for his "charley horse" that developed yesterday. "I was thinking about Buck-Rides-Again Gehrig," he said, "and I pulled up lame."

INMATES WHIP WINES

Score Easy 50 to 31 Triumph Over Akron Club at Institution.

The Inmates of the Reformatory ran unmolested over the National Wines of Akron, 50 to 31, at the Reformatory last night. The Reformatory regulars, with Moore leading the way, took a 14 to 6 lead in the opening frame. The Inmates topped their scoring with 22 points in the third stanza to hold an overwhelming 44 to 10 advantage.

Moore collected 15 points while Ruskino tallied the same number for the visitors.

Hemsley, Rookie Nowak Give Indians Pair of Headaches

Catcher Ordered Home After Violating Camp Rules; Terry Brings Charges.

(By United Press)

NEW ORLEANS, La.—The Cleveland Indians had a case of "double trouble" today.

The club's first headache was Rollie Hemsley, who has been the major league's premier "play boy" for almost a decade. The second was an unknown rookie, Bill Nowak, who has never played a game in the ranks of organized baseball.

Oscar Vitt, Cleveland's new manager, put the clamps on Hemsley's riotous night life and drinking activities here yesterday after the catcher had broken training rules for the third time since camp opened 10 days ago.

Vitt Disgusted.

Disgusted with the receiver's refusal to stay in condition Vitt ordered Hemsely to return to his home at Dixon, Mo. The catcher left for there last night.

Despite repeated promises to stay on the "straight and narrow" and help Cleveland into a position as a pennant contender, Hemsley was guilty of the same violations that had caused the Pittsburgh Pirates, Cincinnati Reds, Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Browns to give up on him.

Rollie Hemsley

Hemsley was ordered to "stay home until you make up your mind to keep in condition and play baseball."

Vitt declined to elaborate upon the order to discuss what course he might follow.

Hemsley was acquired by the Indians during the winter in exchange for three players, Catcher Billy Sullivan, Second Baseman Roy Hughes and Pitcher Ed Cole.

The case of Nowak is another tangled affair reminiscent of the squabbles Cleveland had over the contracts of Bob Feller and Tom Henrich.

Nowak, a Detroit sandlotter, allegedly was signed by the Indians to a contract for their Springfield (O.) farm in the Mid-Atlantic league. However, the agreement was never filed with minor league headquarters.

This spring Nowak reported to a baseball school conducted by Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants. His play was so impressive that he was signed to a Jersey City contract. This contract was filed with the proper sources, but under the youngster's assumed name, Bill Wayne.

Yesterday the sandlot star worked out with the Indians. The day before he had been with the Giants.

Charges 'Kidnaping.'

Terry has accused the Tribe of "kidnaping" the player and threatens to take the case to Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, baseball's high commissioner. The Cleveland team in return alleges Terry tampered with a player already under contract.

CARRIERS PARE LOSSES, JOIN RECOVERY MOVE

Brokers Consider Decision to Increase Freight Rates of Utmost Importance.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK — Stock market leaders withstood early selling today and a subsequent mild rally sent many prices higher by fractions to a point or more.

The carrier division participated in the recovery move and many earlier losses were pared or erased. Preliminary carloading reports for the week, showing fair increases in some instances, proved a favorable factor.

Bonds were uneven in a narrow range. Commodities inclined downward. Foreign markets were mixed.

Brokers considered of paramount importance among overnight developments the interstate commerce commission's decision to increase certain freight rates. Carrier executives generally held to an attitude of disappointment that the rise had not been more widely applied and of greater extent.

In its weekly summary "Iron Age" pointed out the rate decision might stimulate some buying of steel for immediate delivery in view of the added tariff of 10 per cent on that product.

For the first time since January, "Iron Age" reported, some of the companies have been able to detect an improved trend in orders.

RELIEF BURDEN SHIFTED TO CITY

Officials Confer Today on New Law Effective on March 15.

nor Madison township where the majority of the relief clients in the county live, have contributed anything to finance the present program which is operated almost entirely on state funds.

The county, which has been struggling since November to find money to meet rising relief costs, is receiving less than $5,500 a month from the state to pay bills that mounted to nearly $24,000 in February.

Of the amount spent last month for relief in the county, the city of Mansfield and Madison township received about $21,000, the rest going to Shelby.

The February report showed 1,028 relief cases in Mansfield, and 384 in Madison township. Other sections of the county, excepting Shelby, are taking care of their own relief burdens. The Shelby cost is comparatively small.

FIRE KILLS BABY

Child Perishes as Blaze Hits Pennsylvania Shack.

HAWLEY, Pa.—(ANS)—Home for Mr. and Mrs. Leland Masker and their brood of five was a tar-paper covered wood shack. Today it was a funeral pyre for one year old Patricia who was burned to death when a defective stove ignited the shack.

Her parents, three sisters and one brother suffered serious burns.

SAYS U. S. HOLDS KEY TO PEACE

Speaker at Closing Institute Session Contends America Needs Rest of World.

Asia, he pointed out. Their art, religion, government and law are all foreign products which have been developed to a higher degree after being brought to America, Albert said.

Scoffing at the immediate possibility of another world war, Albert said two great European powers, Germany and Italy, realize that they are not prepared economically too enter another conflict and are not likely to seek trouble.

"Neither Italy nor Germany has any surplus supply of coal, iron, cotton, or petroleum—all necessities in war times—and each knows its imports would be cut off if it started a war," he said.

"Germany is attempting to teach people to get along with substitutes, giving the nation more independence, but it is not succeeding very well."

In the interests of world peace and its own economic welfare, the United States can't afford to boycott Japan, the speaker contended.

"Both countries need each other's products; we sell Japan our surplus and buy things we don't produce here, and a boycott would mean the loss of a large part of our cotton exports," Albert asserted.

Denies Lectures Propaganda.

Replying to a question from the audience during the forum period which followed his address, Albert denied that the series of lectures just completed here was propoganda for an alliance with Great Britain.

"That accusation has been made before," he said, "but just because two of the lecturers in this series were Britons, it doesn't necessarily mean that the institute is pro-British. We have tried to give audiences both sides of the question.

"I have no doubt that three of the five speakers would welcome such an alliance, but I'm one who opposes it," he said. "Such a combination would cause each country to distrust the other, and every change of administration in the United States would threaten relations between this country and England. This talk of propaganda is phooie!" he exclaimed.

Albert was introduced last night by Atty. Henry Huston, member of the University club.

SHELVE CITY WATER PLANS

Council Committees Stymied by Lack of Funds, Defer Woodland Project.

right direction, City Designing Engineer A. M. Mock said the proposal was a "bad job" from an engineering project by halting the construction of the Lexington avenue main at Glendale boulevard instead of extending it 1,600 feet farther to Blanche street as outlined in original plans.

He explained that from an engineering standpoint he considered it "would be a poor job inasmuch as the 20-inch main would connect onto a 12-inch main at Glendale boulevard and would not serve the purpose for which it was intended."

Questioned as to the additional amount necessary, Mock explained that an additional $10,000 would be needed to make the 1,600 foot extension.

Miller and Kelley balked on the additional $10,000, stating that the city finances would be stretched to the limit to raise the $65,000.

Kelley said the city bond issuing authority would be taxed $25,000 to finance the improvement and that the $15,000 would take practically all the unappropriated funds in the waterworks department. He deemed the issuance of more than $25,000 in bonds against the revenue of the waterworks inadvisable because of the $9,000 payment to be met for bond retirement this year.

Councilman George Berg said he was not in favor of the issuance of mortgage revenue bonds and suggested that the entire program be placed before the voters next fall. He was joined by Mock who stated that if the plan fell through at an election, the city would still have the alternative of going ahead with the Woodland job next year, if finances permitted.

'DOG-NAPED' DOG CHEATS DEATH

Found Tied In Sack Two Minutes Before Train Passes.

FRAZEYSBURG, O. — (UP) — Mitzie, a Scotch terrier owned by Mr. and Mrs. Beman Connar, cheated death by two minutes.

Mitzie was "dog-naped" a week ago by some dog hater who already has poisoned or killed in some manner a dozen pets in this community.

Connar and a party of neighbors, searching for Mitzie, found her tied in a sack on the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. Connar cut open the sack and rescued Mitzie. Two minutes later the train raced by.

Mayor E. W. Connar, father of Mitzie's owner, today offered a $25 reward for arrest and conviction of the person or persons who tied the dog to the track.

LOST LADY + + +

By GEORGE E. HOLT

(Copyright 1938)

CHAPTER XIII

If Mercedes was beginning to treat Murray Kilbourne like all the other young men, then she had ceased to care for him.

And if she did not treat Don Ponce Robles like the other young men, then she was beginning to care for him.

Both these conclusions were distasteful to Don Vincente Torres. And so he resolved to have a little talk with his daughter at the first good opportunity.

As for Senorita Mercedes and Don Ponce, they rode together a good deal, and sat on the piazza a good deal, and talked a good deal. And Don Ponce's eyes were beginning to say things which his tongue yet did not utter, although that was at liberty to say things which, among the colder people north of the Line, would have been taken as a declaration.

As for Mercedes, she was piqued with Don Murray Kilbourne because she was in love with Don Murray Kilbourne. But there was a fascination for the sleek and sophisticated Don Ponce Robles whose eyes contained lights whenever he looked at her. Little lights which are the "go" signal of love.

And although the girl knew that she loved Don Murray and would never cease to love him, these lights in Don Ponce's eyes thrilled her, and the occasional touch of his hand sent tinglings through her own and the tones of his voice seemed to seize upon something receptive within her, as a radio receiving set is impressed by the proper waves. So that sometimes, for brief periods, she found that she was not thinking of Don Murray but of Don Ponce.

Don Vincente and his daughter had just returned to the hacienda at sunset—Don Ponce had, with many protestations of regret, remained at the house in order, as he explained, to write important letters—when Murray Kilbourne and Jose Verdugo rode in.

Neither Don Vincente nor his daughter had expected to see the American again so soon, and Don Vincente, standing beside his daughter on the steps, watched Murray with keen eyes. But Don Murray was smiling cheerfully, and Jose was bowing with hat off.

"We are indeed glad to have you return so soon, Murray," said Don Vincente, as he clasped Murray's hand.

"That is true, Murray," said Mercedes, holding out her own hand, and looking into his eyes. "But—but you do not bring with you the Lost Lady."

Murray shrugged in true Spanish fashion.

"Because," he replied, "she is still the Lost Lady. Sometime, however . . ."

"Oh, undoubtedly," interrupted Mercedes. "Undoubtedly. There is something so romantic about a lost lady. Even if she is lost intentionally. However, Murray," she continued quickly, smiling into his eyes with her own, "let us do what we can to make up for her absence. Will you ride with me, Murray?"

For a moment Murray hesitated in answering—a moment in which, marking his hesitation, anger jumped to life in the girl's eyes.

Then the American grinned down at her.

"With the greatest pleasure, Mercedes," he said. "I was just wondering whether you were not, perhaps, tired, having just returned from riding."

Mercedes tossed her head, wrinkled her nose, but accepted the explanation.

"I will return in a moment," she said, and ran into the house.

Murray took instant advantage of her absence to approach close to Don Vincente.

"I must speak to you for a few minutes, at least, before I go to ride with Mercedes," he said. "Make some excuse to send her away."

Don Vincente nodded, rubbed his beard, nodded again. Went into the house, where, in the hallway, he encountered his daughter returning.

"Postpone your ride ten or fifteen minutes, my dear," he said. "I had not told you, but Don Ponce has made a definite offer for some land at the far end of the rancho. I wish to talk to Murray about it. Later we may have no chance, as he cannot remain long."

"Why, sure, Daddy," replied the girl, drawing off her gloves. "We'll ride tomorrow. "But . . . but don't tell any of the ranch, daddy. Not to . . . not to anybody."

"That is the way I feel, too, my dear," replied her father. "But—well, I won't do anything without consulting you first. Now run along. Or, you might go down and see how Miguel's wife is, after her new baby."

"Oh, I'd forgotten," said the girl. "I'll go right away."

A moment later she was on her horse, waving a hand to Don Vincente and Murray.

Don Vincente led the way to chairs, but Murray stopped him.

"Let us go to your study, Don Vincente," he suggested. "What I have to tell you is for no other ears—even by chance."

In the study he drew his chair close to the old man's.

"I bring queer news," he said, then. "I'll tell it from the beginning. This afternoon Manuel, the cousin of Jose, was drinking tequila in the Cafe Porfirio Diaz when a man, apparently very drunk, came and sat down across the table from him. You will know that in the afternoon there are few people in the cafes, so that there was no one seated near Manuel.

"Manuel runs a garage in Tijuana, no? Is that the one?"

"Yes, Don Vincente, he is the one. Well, after this fellow sat down and had managed to drink a glass of tequila—Manuel says he was scarcely able to get the glass to his lips—he began to talk to himself. Something like this, according to Manuel:

"'Ho, ho, ho! Will that not be a joke on old Don Vincente Torres. A good joke on the old aristocrat. What a joke! Only Red Vasquez could think up a joke like that. To raid the old aristocrat's ranch, drive off the cattle, seize his automobiles and his valuables . . . ho! ho! I wish I could watch them do it. What a joke! And the old man doesn't suspect a thing about it, that is the best of the joke'."

"All this time he never looked at Manuel; just sat with his eyes closed, mumbling about this joke."

Don Vincente straightened up, started at Murray.

"Go on," he said, "what else?"

"Well, the fellow mumbled on, but clearly enough so that Manuel could catch every word. 'I think Don Vincente, the old aristocrat, will be very much surprised tonight when Red Vasquez and his men perpetrate this joke on him. Oh, much surprised. I would be, if I were Don Vincente. Assuredly. But I have no ranch to be robbed, so I have nothing to worry about. Except—except—where did that tequila go?" Then, according to Manuel, the fellow looked at him and accused him of drinking his tequila, and became angry and got up and went out of the cafe, complaining that it was not an honest place, where one's tequila could be stolen by somebody else."

"And what do you think of this tale, Murray?" asked the old man.

"If I were Don Vincente," replied Murray, "I would take it for gospel truth—and get ready to repel boarders."

"Really?" said Don Vincente. "It appears to me more like the wild dream of a drunken man. You know what tequila eventually does to one's head."

"If it stood alone, perhaps, yes," said Murray. "But let me tell you what has been happening since I saw you last. And I may say in advance that I am convinced that this fellow who talked so Manuel could overhear it was a Mexican called Pablo. Pablo Sanchez. Keep the name in mind while I tell you the rest of the story."

Briefly, then, Murray narrated the events which had just passed. He told of the seemingly drunken man, whom Jose identified as Pablo Sanchez, who in singing "La Paloma" had interpolated a warning against Murray's going to the cafe in answer to Dolores' note, saying Dolores did not want him to come regardless of what the note said. He also told of how Pablo had evidently gotten rid of the driver of the car in which two fake policemen intended to take Jose and him for a "ride" and instead had driven to the police station. And of how the imposters leaped from the car and disappeared into the night amid a hail of police bullets.

Don Vincente listened, at first with apparent incredulity, then with growing interest, at last with astonishment.

FARMERS WILL HEAR OF NEW SOILS PROGRAM

Conservation Set-Up to Be Explained at Series of Township Meetings.

A series of meetings to acquaint Richland county farmers with details of the 1938 federal soils conservation program had been scheduled today by county conservation officials, with three of the sessions set for this afternoon and tonight.

A meeting will be conducted in each township in the county during the next week by County Agent Ganyard and G. L. Taylor, county chairman of the soils program. They will be assisted by members of the county committee in telling farmers how to comply with the federal program which pays benefits for soil building practices.

With the exception of two meetings, one of which was held in Plymouth township this afternoon and the other set for 2 p. m. Saturday at the courthouse, all the sessions will begin at 8 p. m. on the dates listed, Ganyard said.

First Last Night.

The Butler township meeting was held last night at the Adario school and no date has been set for the Sandusky township conference.

Other sessions and the meeting places are:

Wednesday—Troy township, Grange hall in Lexington; Jackson township house.

Thursday—Mifflin township community house; Franklin township house; Perry township, community house, Darlington.

Friday—Monroe township, Lucas school; Bloominggrove township house, Rome; Washington township, Bridgeport school.

Saturday—Sharon township, City hall, Shelby; Worthington township, Butler school building; Jefferson township, Bellville Grange hall; Madison township, courthouse at 2 p. m.

Monday—Springfield township, high school, Ontario; Weller township, Union high school; Cass township, Shiloh high school.

HEARING SET ON DITCH PROJECT

Commissioners to Review Assessments on Madison Proposal.

County commissioners today had set Monday, March 14, for a hearing on assessments for the proposed construction of the Rocky Fork ditch in Madison township.

Cost of the construction project if it is approved, will be assessed against property holders in the section drained by the ditch. No estimate had been made today on the cost of the ditch which is approximately 6,000 feet long.

The proposal calls for a new channel for Rocky Fork creek near the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company plant north of the city.

NO QUESTIONS ASKED

WHY THEY FAIL

Prexy Gives Three Reasons For Students' Failures.

LUBBOCK, Tex.—(INS)—Why college students fail in their work is no longer a mystery, after a two-year survey at Texas Technological college here.

According to President Bradford Knapp, the causes of failures can be divided into three groups:

(1) Lack of thorough high school preparation.

(2) Necessity of spending too much time in work to earn their way through college.

(3) Cutting classes, being indifferent to requirements too great attention to social functions, attending moving pictures too often, or too much wasting of time.

"A fourth reason may be the attitude of the student toward his college course," comments President Knapp. "We have too many students who are indifferent to their college work and do not feel that they want to come to college except for a 'whale of a good time'."

NOT TREES

Onions, Board Rules, Are Not to Be Planted On Streets.

FORT WORTH, Tex.—(INS)—Onions are all very fine in their place—but that place is not in the area between sidewalk and curbing of Fort Worth's streets.

That's the ruling of the city park board, which watches enforcement of the city ordinance requiring property owners to obtain permits for planting on ground lying between sidewalk and curb.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

CITY ASKS BIG HIKE IN O. S. R. SEWER RENTAL

Submits New Contract Calling For 900 Per Cent Increase Over Present Rate.

City officials today were negotiating with the state welfare department for the renewal of the sewer rental contract for the Mansfield reformatory which calls for an increase of 900 per cent over the rate that just expired.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said that the 10-year contract entered into in 1928 had expired yesterday, and that he hoped to enter into a shorter agreement in the new contract.

He explained that a proposal based on the present sewer rental ordinance had been forwarded to Supt. Arthur L. Glattke for consideration by the state welfare department.

Based On New Ordinance.

The new contract calls for a rate based on the new sewer rental ordinance which went into effect last year. The rate under this plan is determined by the quantity of water used.

Under the terms of the former contract, the institution paid a sewer rental based on the monthly population which amounted to approximately $900 per year for the past three years.

The new proposal if accepted by the welfare department, would cost the state $8,000 annually, Styert pointed out.

Plans have also been agreed upon to have the institution install a manhole equipped with a screen on the reformatory property to keep foreign materials from entering the city's sewer system. Reformatory officials have agreed to make a daily inspection of the manhole which will reduce sewer maintenance costs, Styert said.

FEARS DEFICIT

State Official Sees School Funds Shrink More.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— Shrinkage in retail sales tax receipts, if it continues at the present pace through the year, may leave the state public school foundation program with a $12,000,000 deficit at the end of 1938, Dr. D. H. Sutton, assistant education director, has declared.

The current movement in behalf of a constitutional amendment to repeal all excise taxes was viewed by Dr. Sutton as embodying grave danger to school financing.

Syracuse university is planning a reenactment of the constitutional convention of 1787 with students wearing costumes typical of the period.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD

Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

STATE LIQUOR PROFIT SYSTEM IN COURT TEST

Ohio Supreme Court Hears Arguments In Suit Over Handling Charges.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The right of the state liquor department to collect a 30 per cent profit charge and a 15 per cent handling charge on liquor imported from another state for personal use was debated today before the Ohio supreme court.

L. L. Forchheimer of Cincinnati, attorney for Eli Frankenstein, another Cincinnati lawyer, asked the court to declare the two charges invalid as a constitutional violation.

He contended:

That the liquor control act does not permit the liquor department to impose these charges;

That the department is a corporation created by a special act of the legislature, although the state constitution says the legislature cannot pass a special act conferring corporate powers;

Hits Monopoly Status.

That there is no authority under the constitution to establish a state monopoly for revenue, and

That the state's police power cannot be used to assist the state as a trader or merchant.

Forchheimer said he did not question the state's right to collect a $1 a gallon tax on imported liquor or to require its transportation under a special liquor department permit.

Opposing the petition for a declaratory judgment, Asst. Atty. Gen. Morton B. Icove contended the issue was "how far can the state go in limiting the importation of liquor?" and told the court the state had not overstepped its authority.

He asserted:

That under the 21st amendment to the federal constitution states could set up laws regulating the importation of liquor;

That the courts have held before that there is no federal constitutional question involved in the Ohio monopoly system;

That the liquor department is not a corporation inasmuch as it is not autonomous, and that

Regulation of liquor importation is within the state's police power to protect the welfare of its citizens.

The case was argued before the court on its merits after the lower courts ruled against Frankenstein.

It involves a case of liquor which the attorney purchased in Kentucky in 1935, but which he has not brought into Ohio.

The court did not indicate when it would give a decision.

TALKS TO CLUB

Phone Representative Shows Films at Dinner In Galion.

GALION—The evolution of the telephone was described in a talk by Nap T. Videan of Bellevue, commercial representative of the Northern Ohio Telephone company, at a meeting of the Galion Kiwanis club Tuesday noon. He presented two talking films, one showing the part the telephone system plays in transmitting radio programs, and the other showing the important part proper insulation played in the transmission problem. He also showed a number of types of telephone equipment.

Two numbers were sung by the Boys' Glee club of the Galion high school under the direction of Walter F. VonBrock.

Robert Corry introduced Dick Kump and Fred Staub, members of the Senior class of Galion high school as Junior Kiwanians who are selected by a Kiwanis committee, and are members of the club for a period of time. They are entitled to the same privileges as a regular member.

IMPROVE CAMP

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Adjutant General Emil F. Marx reports that construction work on a $343,000 program to improve Ohio National Guard facilities will be "well under way" by early summer.

Work on a new $72,000 theater for Camp Perry is already started while construction of a $38,000 administration building at the camp is far on the road to completion, Marx said.

Most Women Don't Need Beauty Parlors

Sallow complexions and pimply skins are often not a matter for cosmetics. For most skin blemishes are aggravated by constipation.

Constipation can be a serious handicap. Mental dullness, early fatigue, headaches, sleeplessness, mental depression, loss of appetite, hyper-acidity can all be caused by it.

Keep regular. If more than a day goes by, use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This famous laxative is the choice of millions. It does not shock the intestinal system. And in addition, it stimulates the secretion of bile without the discomfort of drastic or irritating drugs. Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at your druggist, 15¢, 30¢ and 60¢.

the article as impugning their integrity.

Lienthal and H. A. Morgan, Mr. Roosevelt related, adopted a resolution asking the chairman either to prove his allegations or withdraw them. They sent the resolution to the president. Mr. Roosevelt wrote the chairman that the dissension threatened the TVA program, and Morgan promptly came to Washington.

The president quoted Chairman Morgan as saying he meant no reflection on the other directors. Mr. Roosevelt then instructed him to try to work in harmony with the others.

Morgan's recent call for a congressional inquiry into TVA in the interest of "decency" in government brought the feud into the open.

Previously the other two directors in a statement to the president had charged Morgan with obstructionist tactics and asked his resignation.

Senator Norris has proposed an investigation by the federal trade commission.

Senator King (D., Utah) with Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) introduced an investigation resolution.

Chairman Copeland (D., N. Y.) called the senate committee together to decide whether it would hold hearings before sending the King-Bridges resolution to the senate floor.

MORGAN OHIO NATIVE

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, who today is embroiled in a dispute with his co-directors over management of the Tennessee Valley Authority, is one of Ohio's distinguished sons, with accomplishments in science, education and literature.

Now 60 years old, a former college president and acknowledged to be one of the country's foremost engineers, Morgan never was graduated from college; in fact, according to reliable biographical accounts, he did not go to college. But in recognition of his engineering feats two universities have conferred honorary degrees upon him.

Much of the work—both engineering and educational — that brought him national attention was done in Ohio, particularly in Dayton and the little village of Yellow Springs in Greene county.

RITES FRIDAY

JEROMESVILLE—Funeral services for Alexander Geddes Rennie, 81, who died at the home of George Chapman, three miles east of here Monday morning, will be held at the Reedsburg Reformed church Friday at 2 p. m. with Rev. Paul Bauders officiating. Burial will be made in the Reedsburg cemetery.

Mr. Rennie was born in Scotland, and came to America, when he was three years old. Survivors include several nieces and nephews.

A Farmer's Diary

March 8.

TODAY I saw a boy go along Main street. He was about thirteen. Wore a gray cap, dark suit which he appeared to be growing through—the pants and coat were much too short. His work shirt was dark gray and its collar held a tie of last year's vintage.

His face was ruddy, with dark eyes that snapped and sparkled; a broad mouth which gaped in eagerness at every passing wonder.

I watched this country lad dodge in and out among the people on the street. Some jostled him. He ran into others, until from sheer despair he shyly crept closer to the shop windows.

Here, oblivious to all surroundings, he followed the window trimmer, plying his artistic trade. At another window, south, were two meat cutters slicing heavy steaks. He watched with absorbing interest until each quarter was completely done.

Again I saw him move out toward the curb and count the stories in the tallest buildings, until he stepped upon a loose brickbat and instinctively grabbed a lamp post to keep from rolling prone into the street.

Three city boys, walking near, nudged each other, pointed to their victim and called him "Hick, from Punkin Center."

I felt more at home when I drew near this lad. He still possesses what many city boys have lost—that rare curiosity for all things new, a thirst for knowledge that cannot be satisfied, dreams that rise beyond our vision.

WAREHOUSE HIT BY $7,500 FIRE

Short Circuit In Wiring Seen as Cause of Blaze at Hughes Supply Co.

had started from a short circuit in the electric wiring in the front of the building, was confined to that part of the structure by a fire wall that protected a $20,000 stock of enamel goods stored in the shipping room, A. J. Bair, vice president and general manager of the firm, said.

He estimated damage to the warehouse at $5,000 and damage to brass plumbing supplies at $2,500. The later will have to be returned to the factory to be refinished, Bair added. The stock and building was covered by insurance.

Fire broke out at the warehouse a second time shortly before 11 p. m. and threatened to sweep through the entire building, when sparks smouldering under the roofing set it ablaze.

Firemen from both companies again laid two lines and extinguished the flames before they had burned into the interior of the building.

Firemen from company No. 1 were called to the home of J. C. Stenstrom, Smith avenue, East Mansfield at 8:30 a. m. today to extinguish a fire that had started on the roof of the two-story residence from chimney sparks.

The fire was discovered by Stenstrom's 11-year-old daughter as she left the house for school and saw the flames shooting from the roof.

The blaze destroyed a part of the roof and part of a second floor bedroom. Damage was estimated at $300 by Mrs. Stenstrom.

In less than an hour, firemen were called to the Miller Brake service, 69 North Walnut street, to extinguish the blaze in a leaky acetylene tank that had caught fire.

Albert Miller, proprietor, was burned about the hand when the torch he was using ignited the escaping gas from the tank. He was treated at a physician's office.

Shortly before noon firemen answered the third alarm of the morning at the Mersch Motor Sales, 20 North Bowman street, when employes discovered smoke seeping out of a partition in the office. Firemen reported that there was no blaze.

STATE ENDING SLAYING TRIAL

Defense Maps Opening In Case of Accused Police Killer.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Completion of the state's case expected about noon today, will pave the way for the defense to attempt to save Stephen Figuli, charged with the murder of Detective Robert R. Cline, from the electric chair.

Figuli's counsel indicated that the fact that Figuli did not participate in the actual shooting would be the focal point of the defense testimony.

Mrs. Julia Cline, wife of the slain detective, did not testify, both prosecution and defense agreeing that it would be too much of an ordeal.

AERIAL HITCH-HIKER PROVES PUZZLE FOR AIR LINE CHIEFS

(By International News Service)

DAYTON—What to do with an aerial hitch-hiker was the problem confronting TWA officials and police here today.

The air line's agents said they would not prosecute John Henry Hagaman, 23, whose projected trip from Pittsburgh, Pa., to Van Nuys, Cal., ended last night when detectives removed him from an eastbound transport as a stowaway.

Hagaman had been selling newspapers in Pittsburgh when the flood swept Southern California. Fearing his mother in Van Nuys might be in danger, he set out to her rescue.

The youth got as far as Columbus, O., by hopping a ride on a train. From the Ohio capital he hitch-hiked in the accepted thumbers' manner to Indianapolis, Ind.

There it dawned on Hagaman that his overland trek would require many days, whereas a plane would land him in California in a jiffy. So at Indianapolis he slipped into the washroom of a big TWA airliner.

But, alas, as Hagaman discovered later, the plane he selected was headed eastward instead of toward California. And to cap his bad luck he was discovered aloft.

"The passengers on the airplane were kinda scared when they found me," the young "sky-hiker" related when he landed here. 'They' must have thought I had a bomb or something."

John Henry was detained temporarily by police for investigation.

STORE ENTERED

Burglary of Hardware 10th In City In Last 2 Weeks.

Police today were investigating the burglary of the Cairns Hardware and Supply company, 126 North Main street, the tenth in a series that have occurred here in the past two weeks.

Russell R. Seymour, manager of the firm, told police that he opened the establishment this morning to find a basement door standing open. It had been barred from the inside when the store was closed last night.

An inventory he said revealed that six pocket knives and approximately $1 in pennies had been taken from the cash drawer.

Officers said they believed the looting had been done by youths who had hid themselves in the building until after the place was closed.

QUARANTINE AT HOSPITAL LIFTED

Health Commissioner Takes Off Ban on Private Pavilion.

The quarantine placed on the private pavilion at General hospital last Saturday when a case of smallpox was discovered among the patients, was lifted today, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner, announced.

He said that all direct contacts had been traced and no further signs of the disease had been shown among any of the other patients.

The pavilion was quarantined Saturday when the illness of Wolfred Ebinger, 478 Park avenue west, had been diagnosed as smallpox. He was removed to his home where he is under quarantine.

Patricia Ryan, Fighting For Life, Tells Slaying Details.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Mrs. Patricia Ryan, pale and nervous, fought for her life before a jury of nine men and three women today as she resumed her story of brutal treatment she said led her to kill her policeman-husband, Michael.

The attractive, 21-year-old mother of two children pictured her husband as having been lovable when sober, a tyrant while drunk. And, she said in a low, halting voice, he was "most always drunk."

PORTSMOUTH — (INS) — A 73-year-old New Boston woman, Mrs. Genus Tibbs, was dead today of injuries received a week ago when she was run down while crossing a street.

DESERT SLAYING BAFFLES POLICE

Man's Body, With Head Battered, Found In Nevada.

LAS VEGAS, Nev.—(U.P.)—A slaying on the desert was investigated today following the discovery of a man's body, the head battered, two miles from Las Vegas.

A small hammer, the apparent weapon, lay at his feet. There were indications that he had been shot, but no autopsy had been made.

The only clues to the man's identity were a tag in the suit, of a tailor named Davis in Cincinnati, and a Silverwood label in the hat. He was well dressed, in an overcoat, coat and vest, all tightly buttoned, indicating that he had not been robbed. No wallet or papers were found.

A horseman, Sam Stearns, found the body.

QUIZ 2 IN U. S. AGENT'S DEATH

Police Hold Pair After Fatal Automobile Chase.

NORFOLK, Va. — (INS) — Two men were detained for questioning today following the fatal shooting late last night of Treasury Department Investigator J. W. Jackson.

Jackson and a local policeman, federal agents were told, were chasing an automobile suspected of containing "moonshine" liquor near Deep Creek when he was shot and killed.

Jackson had been working in this territory only two weeks, having been transferred from Alabama.

TOLD OF DEATH

BUCYRUS—Word was received here Tuesday of the death in Cleveland, Okla., Monday of Mrs. B. F. Spicer, former Bucyrus resident.

The Spicers lived in Bucyrus 25 years ago, while Mr. Spicer was manager of the local gas company.

Mr. Spicer and two sons survive.

PICKS SENATOR'S WIDOW

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt has decided to appoint Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, widow of the late Democratic leader of the senate, postmistress at Little Rock, Ark., at a salary of $6,000 a year, Rep. Terry (D) of Arkansas, announced today.

SEATTLE ELECTS LANGLIE

SEATTLE, Wash.—(INS)—Scoring a smashing triumph with his "no promises to anyone" campaign, against his opponent's cry of "support the CIO," Arthur Langlie, 38, was elected mayor of Seattle, complete unofficial returns showed today.

GALION SCHOOL BOARD SEEKS ADVANCE FUND

Wants All Funds From General Revenues Before Regular Tax Settlement.

GALION—The Galion board of education at its meeting Tuesday night authorized the clerk, Harry Sanderlin, to make an advance draw from the Crawford county auditor for all monies collected and due the Galion schools from the county on the general fund. It was reported that the first quarterly distribution reached the schools in the form of a certificate on March 1. The tax distributions will be later, and $7,000 has been borrowed on this collection.

The board authorized the payment of current bills for the past two months, totaling $4,873.49.

Bids were on hand at the meeting for coal neded at some buildings of the city. It was decided to try Kentucky coal this time, purchasing 30 tons at $5.30 from Garverick, and 30 tons at $5.29 from Rhinehart, both local dealers.

Get Insurance Check.

It was reported that the board had received the full $445 as a reimbursement for the fire loss at the Senior high school.

Bills for windstorm insurance are to be paid in the following amounts: $158.33 to J. C. Mortland and $56.32 to Lloyd Casey.

In his regular report to the board, Supt. O. E. Hill stated that he had purchased classroom and office supplies which invoice at 120 for only $50 from a local printing company. These were usable supplies which will eliminate necessary purchases for these purposes next September.

It was also reported that the committee on Visual Education had selected temporarily the Belle and Howell projector outfit. It will be purchased at the next committee meeting at an approximate cost of $400. Richard Horn of the Junior high faculty has been appointed as visual education director to help Supt. Hill select and arrange for pictures to be used with the outfit.

All boilers in the city school buildings have been inspected. They were considered in excellent condition.

Donald Smith has been serving temporarily as custodian at the North school building. His services were necessary when O. J. Dewalt took charge of the work of M. R. McCammon at the high school when the latter was ill recently.

The board spent some time in discussing teaching personnel.

2 SENTENCED

Ashland Judge Disposes of Theft Indictments.

ASHLAND—One person was committed to the Lima State Hospital for the Insane, and one person was given a one to five year suspended sentence for breaking and entering, at hearings held before Judge C. C. Chapman of common pleas court here.

Daniel Meehan, homeless, found insane, was committed to the state hospital for the criminally insane, after testimony heard convinced the court that he was not responsible for his actions.

He had been indicted on charges of theft of personal goods from the home of Marshall Whisler.

Carl J. Clark, 22, was given a suspended sentence of from one to five years in the Mansfield reformatory for breaking and entering into property of Robert Troxel, and taking soy beans.

Don't Neglect a Cold

Rub soothing, warming Musterole well into your chest and throat.

Musterole is NOT just a salve. It's a "counter-irritant" containing good old-fashioned cold remedies—oil of mustard, menthol, camphor and other valuable ingredients.

That's why it gets such fine results—better than the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Musterole penetrates, stimulates, warms and soothes, helpful in drawing out local congestion and pain. Used by millions for 30 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists'. In three strengths: Regular Strength, Children's (mild), and Extra Strong.

WOMAN, 65, ENDS LIFE BY HANGING

Husband Finds Wife's Body Suspended From Rafter on Bath Towel.

Despondent over ill-health a 65-year-old woman yesterday ended her life in the basement of her home by hanging herself from a rafter with a bath towel.

The body of Mrs. Eva Koontz was found by her husband, Charles G. Koontz, when he returned to his home at 18 Chandler place at 3:20 p. m. yesterday.

County Coroner Hugh C. Winbigler summoned by police said the woman apparently had been dead for several hours. He gave despondency over ill health as a reason for the act.

Police said that Koontz had left home at 6:30 a. m. to go to work and had returned in the afternoon to find his wife misisng. A search revealed her lifeless body hanging from a rafter in the basement.

Police were told that the woman had indicated on previous occasions that she intended to take her life.

Mrs. Koontz had been a resident of Mansfield for 15 years. She was born in Cadiz, April 3, 1872.

Surviving are her husband; her mother, Mrs. Jennie Beal Koontz, and a sister, Mrs. Sally Yonally, both of Cadiz. She was a member of the Presbyterian church of Cadiz.

Services will be held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Yonally, at 2 p. m. Friday with Rev. Patterson officiating. Burial will be in Cadiz. The body will remain at the Finefrock funeral home until noon Thursday.

COUNCIL MEETS

CRESTLINE — Mayor L. F. Waldbauer reported receiving $168 for fines and $4 for licenses at the regular meeting of city council held Monday evening in the council chambers.

The utility committee was requested to make a check of all street lights and make the necessary changes where needed.

ASKS $25,000 IN BALM SUIT

Akron Woman Sues Millersburg Man Charging He Broke Promise to Wed.

MILLERSBURG—Raymond Rudy, former owner of the Millersburg ice plant, was named defendant in a $25,000 suit filed by Beulah Carpenter, 304 East Cuyahoga avenue, Akron, in common pleas court here today. The plaintiff charges that on four different occasions during 1936 the defendant broke their engagement to wed and refused to marry her.

Plaintiff says in her petition that as a result of defendant's neglect and refusal to marry her she has lost the prospects of a permanent home; that she has lost the respect, affection, devotion and love which she had anticipated as wife of the defendant; that she has lost the financial and economic security which she would have acquired as the wife of defendant.

She further says that the manned in which defendant has deserted her has caused her mental anguish from which she has been unable to recover.

The petition is the first case of this kind filed in common pleas court here during the past 50 years.

SCOUTS MEET

BUCYRUS — Advancement of Girl Scout work will occupy the minds of local Girl Scout promoters and officers who will meet with Mrs. John T. Jaeger of the national field staff for a dinner meeting at the Bucyrus restaurant tonight.

Attending the session will be captains and lieutenants, members of the recently formed Girl Scout council and council and troop committees.

NEW 'DEATH RAY'

Kills Germs But Won't Harm Human Beings, Claim.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—Perfection of a "death ray" that kills germs but is harmless to human beings has been announced.

It is an ultra-violet ray emitted from a lamp which, within a short time, kills bacteria and molds on food, eating utensils and in the air.

Typhoid germs, according to the claims, can be destroyed within a few seconds. Through sterilization of the air, it is hoped to control such diseases as colds, influenza and pneumonia.

The "death ray," known as the sterilamp, is the work of Drs. Harvey C. Rentschler and Robert F. James, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company's laboratories at Bloomfield, N. J.

DOG RETRIEVES WALLET

To produce a bottle of BUDWEISER takes months and months—and yet it's a matter of minutes. Every operation requires perfect hour-and-minute timing. Barley must sprout just so long—and no longer. The clock has the final say-so on mashing, cooking, fermenting and pasteurizing. So, wherever you go in the home of BUDWEISER, you're face-to-face with a clock. And, when you open a bottle of BUDWEISER, you're face-to-face with that sort of enjoyment and satisfaction that only precise brewing can produce.

NOTE FOR HOUSEWIVES: A glass of cold BUDWEISER is always a thoughtful compliment to a husband—especially in the evening. Has he ever expected it when there was none in the icebox? Check up on your supply. Keep a carton on hand—and several bottles or cans of BUDWEISER chilled and ready for instant serving . . . at unexpected as well as regular occasions.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 9, 1938.

Fine roads and fast cars, on the whole, are probably no worse than any other form of intoxication.

Nations nowadays have their choice between employment and war. An army of idle men easily becomes an army on the march.

In a modern electrified house, says an announcement, "Everything is electrical but the chairs." That's just as well. People never did fancy electric chairs.

Out of China.

A HISTORIC event occurred the other day at Tientsin, China—the coast city that serves as a seaport for Peking. The Fifteenth regiment of United States Infantry sailed for home. It had been stationed there for more than a quarter of a century, so long that it had come to be regarded as a fixture.

The personnel had changed, of course, from year to year, but the organized unit remained. And many a story the veterans of that service have to tell of war and peace and the teeming life of China. They were doubtless standing by, for instance, when Gen. Smedley Butler, stationed there also with his marines during a civil war, as Butler himself relates, alone in a Ford car, stopped and turned back an army of a million rebels.

Something hardly less interesting is being told around unofficially by men who are, or have been, in the China service. The United States, they say, is "getting out of China," and the Tientsin departure is only one incident in a slow, quiet but general exodus.

This was the obvious intention of our government when the Japanese attacked Shanghai. But there was such a clamor from Americans and American interests in China that the administration gave in, sent more warships and troops and, while still advising Americans to leave, made a vigorous stand against Japanese encroachment on American rights.

Our people, however, have been slowly draining out of the country. So it is quite credible that our government, while stoutly maintaining American rights in principle, will gladly withdraw so far as it can be done with safety and honor.

Co-operative Democracies.

THAT flurry over an alleged secret naval pact between the United States and Great Britain has subsided. It seems to be accepted by Washington correspondents, of all shades of opinion, that no binding commitments have been given by either government. There is obvious good will, and perhaps a tacit understanding as regards general naval policy and a friendly attitude in emergencies, but apparently nothing formal or binding.

With this understanding, perhaps most Americans can agree with a statement made by Secretary of Interior Ickes in his Washington's birthday broadcast to the British Empire:

"The community of interest that exists between Great Britain and America, as well as between other people who believe in democracy, should be strengthened. The principle of democracy is under attack throughout the world and is faced with the greatest fight in its history.

"In all parts of the world today it is beset by two fanatical foes, which have the will to conquer at all costs. Democracy cannot live side by side in the same country with either Fascism or Communism.

"Democracy is the very antithesis of these objectionable systems of government. Totalitarianism, either of the right or of the left, is alien to the spirit that dominates the English-speaking democracies of the world."

Democratic America—or republican America, if anyone prefers that term—has to live in the same world with these alien systems, and has to get along with the nations representing them. But we must continue true to our own system, and friendly with all the free nations in harmony with it.

Rediscovered Document.

GRADE and high school pupils in Illinois are having the sesqui-centennial of the United States Constitution emphasized for them by an essay contest with cash awards of $500 each for winners in the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades and the high schools.

The younger children are to write not more than 600 words on the subject "What the Constitution of the United States Means to Me." The high school youngsters are to write not more than 1,200 words on "My Responsibilities Under the Constitution of the United States."

No one is compelled to submit an essay, but it is hoped that many will do so. There has been much talk and argument about the Constitution in the last year or two. Some of the talkers were well informed; some were talking with little knowledge of the subject.

With hundreds of school children delving into the Constitution itself and into library reference shelves for comment about it, there is likely to be a new wave of family enlightenment in this field of American history. It is hardly possible to do the Constitution justice without getting into its background, American history, the Declaration of Independence, and a few other details sometimes considered tedious in the classroom will interest the Illinois children more than ever before.

Minors' Reading.

TOM SAWYER and "Little Women" remain the most popular books among readers under 21, according to the editor of a popular magazine after a survey of its readers. It is not a bad selection, although critics would not class the two on the same literary level. But it raises a lot of questions in the Missourian mind.

Who reported on the popularity of those books—their actual readers, or the parents, teachers and librarians? And what of "Huckleberry Finn," and "Treasure Island"? What is meant by "most popular"—best liked of all books read, or books read by the most persons?

In spite of carping questions, it is pleasant to find young people reading something more than the comic strips and fan magazines.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

NOW THAT the Soviet trials of the "traitors" "prove" that Nazi Germany conspired with them, on promise of a large slice of Russian territory when the Stalin regime was overthrown, we imagine we see the clever hand of sly Stalin.

The trial is held at this time as a "show" to solidify the Russians against Germany—in order to solidify the power of Stalin once more.

If the Russians were a unit would it be necessary to solidify them?

Could it be that merely the Trotsky leaders and generals were the only ones favoring a rapprochement with Germany?

It seems hardly likely. Stalin then would need no "show" prior to executing the traitors.

IN GERMANY, TOO

Then there was that bloodless purge by Fuehrer Hitler of the generals. They favored a military alliance with Russia.

Possibly no amount of purges can keep the two countries apart. Each has what the other desperately needs. Germany is starving for resources that are wasted in Russia. And Russia seems unable to proceed technically without the engineering skill that Germany possesses to the Nth degree.

Can it be that Hitler and Stalin, in their towering rages over each other, are fighting hopeless battles, and that their respective ideologies will topple before the joint needs of the peoples of their countries?

BRITAIN HOPES NOT

Great Britain, while not desiring such a hate between Hitler and Stalin as to breed a war, hopes they will not get together.

There would be no balance of power with a German-Russian alliance. That alliance would sweep Europe. Nothing could stand up before its preponderance of manpower and resources.

For two centuries Britain has prevented successfully a Russian alliance with any power that did not suit the British balance of power scheme of things.

First, when France was powerful and Napoleon threatened to conquer Europe, Russia was kept away from an alliance.

Then, when Prussia became the dominant European power, Willy and Nicky tried to get together, but again Great Britain made that impossible.

And, at this very moment, Great Britain, forgetting all its horrors of Nazism (easily forgotten by a Tory government) is trying to line up Germany with its own interests.

IF MINDS WERE FREE

If the people of the totalarian countries were permitted to think for themselves, would prejudices not die down?

Would the German eagle and the Russian bear not lie down together in peace?

How much longer till the poison virus of propaganda fed to the citizens of totalarian countries will wear off?

In Germany we already see a disturbed mind among groups of farmers over the sending of their Protestant pastors to concentration camps. These farmers are beginning to question the all-being and omnipotence of the government.

And in Russia the government is said to have moved many citizens away from borders. Why? Because they had ceased to hate their neighbors. They were being contaminated. They might even question their own government.

Thus Stalin holds his "show," to consolidate the minds of his people against a "common enemy," and Hitler roars of an ring of steel and economic barriers shutting Germany off from all that ought to be hers.

And, in one land, the firing squads are busy, while in the other thousands bear the burden of a living death in concentration hells.

Senate Anti-Court Bill Bloc Returns to Wars

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—The congressional fight against the Roosevelt plan of governmental reorganization is assuming the proportions of the president's defeated supreme court reorganization program.

Governmental reorganization generally is recognized as long overdue and urgently needed—but not, the pending scheme's opponents say, the kind of reorganization urged by the administrative supporters. These opponents contend that a virtual executive dictatorship would be created if the White House has its way; furthermore, that no economies are contemplated—only a promised (but not guaranteed) increase in efficiency.

Indeed, Senator James F. Byrnes, who sponsors the proposition, admits that no money will be saved, except as enhanced efficiency may be interpreted as an economy.

Opponents answer that despotisms always are represented as efficient, at least temporarily, but they object to a despotism.

ITS POSSIBILITIES

The thing is not literally a proposed despotism.

The plan seeks to empower the president to rearrange, jumble up and reassort governmental commissions, boards, bureaus and administrations, to switch divisions from department to department and maybe to create a new cabinet department. It would give him considerable authority over their various expenditures. It would concentrate the civil service under a one-man rule, subject to his dictation. It would emasculate the office of comptroller general, which has had a deal to do toward limiting executive spending. It would create the offices of six "assistant presidents"—who may be needed; that is not disputed.

Anyway, it would greatly expand the presidential power.

True, it would not entirely extinguish congress' power.

Congress still could reject the president's decisions. However, it would have to do so by a majority vote. Then the president could veto congress. Afterward congress would have to override the presidential veto by a two-thirds ballot.

Certainly the odds would be in the presidential favor.

THE OPPOSITION

Naturally congressional Republican statesmanship revolts at the possibility of such a situation.

From G. O. P. Leaders Charles L. McNary and Bertrand H. Snell on down, respectively in the senate and the house of representatives, the Republicans unitedly are "antis."

The Democrats?

They are nearly if not quite as "anti" as on the issue of supreme court reorganization.

"ANTI" DEMOCRATS

In the early days of governmental reorganization talk I had a letter from Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, severely "panning" me for asserting that retrenchment reorganizations as he then was urging usually work out contrariwise.

Now Senator Byrd is chief opponent of reorganization, in the form it has taken.

Other anti-reorganization Democrats?—

David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, William Bulow of South Dakota, Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri, Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

And there are some more; these are conspicuous.

ANTI-ROOSEVELTIANS

The Rooseveltian recalcitrants are pretty widely scattered geographically — Massachusetts to Dakota and Montana, from the northwest to Missouri.

And the deep south is to be heard from soon.

The spring primaries will tell the story—not to mention next to November's congressional elections.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, March 9, 1918.

Miss Anna Sattler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Sattler, returned to college at Delaware after a two week's illness at home.

The Our club donated $150 to the Red Cross for war relief.

Mrs Odessa Collins was painfully injured when thrown from her buggy on South Main street, when her horse became frightened.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Curtis Baker and family, South Adams street, returned after spending the winter in Florida.

Sgt. Hugh Hoffer, 810th Aero squadron, Indianapolis, returned to camp after spending furlough with parents, Mr. and Mrs. Brainard Hoffer.

Robert Farris, Loram, former principal of Western avenue school, spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. J. Leo Hartmann, Prospect street.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, March 9, 1933.

Farmers used maple syrup in lieu of cash as result of bank holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hout, 39 Arlington avenue, entertained 30 relatives in honor of 70th birthday of Mrs. C. B. Hout.

Mrs. Charles Eltring, South Bend, Ind., was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Garver, 183 Marion avenue.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Peppard, 20 Ruth avenue.

Loss by fire in Mansfield during preceding month approximately $40,000 according to fire chief's report.

Movings included Howard Worman from 85 Wood street to 216 Lind; W. E. Jones from Park avenue west to Wise avenue.

Listen, World!

Should Ladies Be Slapped?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

She's "simply furious" at the movies. These "detestible scenes" where men are "actually slapping women ..knocking them around ...even kicking them out of doors!" And she goes on!

"It's all too brutal and un-American! America has always been noted for its chivalry toward women. American men have hitherto realized that women are the superior sex and should be shown consideration and honor. Yet nowadays women are treated, on the screen, as though they were cheap and contemptible ...beaten as though they were rats."

"CAN'T SOMETHING BE DONE ABOUT SUCH ABOMINABLE EXHIBITIONS?"

A plenty hot protest, which practically all females and vote-conscious politicians will loudly applaud. But you get no hand from me, lady. These "abominable exhibitions" fail to arouse even an indignant yeep from Yours Truly. To the contrary, I suspect they are one of the best things that ever happened to our American Set-up.

As you say, America has hitherto regarded ladies as goddesses ...and no gentleman was supposed to approach one of 'em without breath sweeteners and salaams. As a consequence, instead of continuing to be the Regular Guys which their two-fisted grandmas were, many American women have become the most cantankerous, unreasonable, unreliable and ruthless Bum Sports ever produced by this human race.

THEY HAVE BEEN FLATTERED AND INDULGED UNTIL THEY SINCERELY BELIEVE THEY ARE GOD'S BEST TREAT...WHO SHOULD BE GIVEN EVERYTHING THEIR LITTLE HEARTS DESIRE, REGARDLESS OF HOW THEY ACT OR WHOM THEY BREAK.

Plead with them? Appeal to their fairness or decency? Threaten them? Just try it and see how far you get!

So but one argument remains—a well-timed sock in the jaw. And goodie, goodie, they're getting it!

Yes, I've seen every movie thump, yank, wallop and kick to which our correspondent objects. But I've yet to see one which wasn't royally deserved... or which the audience wasn't itching to give, itself, long before the Big Boy got busy.

I admit they seem shocking. I admit, also, that said wallops have raised Cain with our ancient code of chivalry. And it will be a long time, if ever, before the female sex regains former privileges. But, I repeat, it is probably the best thing that ever happened to America.

Women claim to be equals with men in America. They have demanded and obtained every male privilege. Why, then, shouldn't they face the responsibilities and the penalties which go with those privileges? We can't have our cake and eat it too, girls.

IF A WOMAN ACTS LIKE A RAT, WHY SHOULDN'T SHE BE TREATED AS ONE? IF A LADY SLAPS, WHY SHOULDN'T SHE BE SLAPPED IN RETURN?

"They're the weaker sex!" Heeey! Look at our athletic records. If battling Bessie can beat all the boys in the swimming tank or on the tennis field, she's certainly tough enough to take a tap on the "conk" when she pulls a rotten deal.

No, I'm not belittling womanhood. Rather, I'm honoring every fine and fair woman with a full heart—and, at the same time, trying to give the whole sex a better break by exposing those vicious members of the tribe who use their sex as a racket to get by with murder.

If women insist upon equality, there should be no exemptions or discriminations—from the cradle up. Baby Brother shouldn't be spanked for whamming Baby Sister when she starts a fracas. Little Sister should be forced to take what she dishes out, whether she's 6 or 36.

FAIR ENOUGH

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

LOS ANGELES — The ink-stained wretches who drew from $200 to $2000 a week for writing moving picture plays have ruined many old friendships in the interests of compulsory harmony.

This is not a unique experience, for members of other trades of more or less intellectual kind who joined sewing circle unions a few years ago have discovered themselves drinking in two distinct groups at far ends of the old saloon — the bolos at the extreme left — and glaring at one another in the mirror.

Pegler

Although it is no libel to call a man a Liberty leaguer in this country, or even a Republican, it is, rather oddly, a serious offense to call a Communist a Communist.

Communists, for some reason, resent being called Communists, and the most that may be said prudently is that they reveal communistic sympathies.

This is the most that may be said of a number of diligent individuals whose membership in the Screen Writers guild of the Authors' league has driven a band of other writers, including some former guilders, into a rival or defensive union and a number of others into a no-man's land between the two camps.

DISSENTERS FIGHT REGIMENTATION

Unquestionably, there are undercover Communists in the writing business here who would like to impose the closed shop and, by adroit but recognizable methods, exclude from the screen ideas contrary to their own.

The dissenters may have been unnecessarily alarmed, overestimating their influence, but, in any case, it was to prevent regimentation and the political discipline of ideas that they formed the Screen Playwrights' association, which is now called a house union.

Radicals are rather free with their use of such words as "fink", "scab" and house union" toward those who jerk away from their attempts to coerce and terrorize, but any mention of communism in connection with their activities is denounced as red-baiting. But red-baiting should be recognized as a legitimate defensive action. They like to dish it, and they will have to take it.

James K. McGuinness, who wrote sport for $90 a week on the old Evening Telegram in New York and now gets $1500 a week for writing dramas in Hollywood, was one of the organizers of the Screen Writers' guild.

He broke away and joined the Screen Playwrights in resentment against the authority of the Authors' league of New York and certain perculiarities of the constitution. Dudley Nichols, also an old reporter, is now president of the Screen Playwrights and is himself no radical, but only a liberal.

OBJECT TO CLOSED SHOP

Aside from their aversion to unity with active, untiring radicals and their suspicion of everything they do in union matters, the rebellious writers absolutely refuse to consider a closed shop or even that modern subterfuge, the guild shop.

They also cite an article in the constitution which empowers guild meetings to levy assessments on their salaries. "With the concurrence of a majority of the active members who vote thereon, shall see fit."

Special attention is directed to the fact that this may be done by a majority of the active members "who vote thereon." This is quite different from the majority of all the active members.

It is also provided that any member whom the executive board deems guilty of conduct prejudicial to the welfare of the league or the guild may be expelled—a death sentence under closed or guild shop.

True, means of appeal are provided, but the delay of vindication conceivably could cost the defendant member much at $1500 or $2000 a week. And, in any case, a majority is empowered to silence the greatest living writer who might be right, though a minority of one against all the rest. Of course, the same applies to the worst living writer. There is a tempting thought in that.

Let's Look Around

Where Huey Long Did Things In a Big Way.

—By G. J. KOCHENDERFER

BATON ROUGE, La.—Whatever may have been thought of Huey P. Long elsewhere in the country, there can be no questioning of the reverence in which his memory is held by a large majority of the people of his home state of Louisiana.

Even so soon after his tragic death, a legend of sainthood is beginning to take form in the minds of many of his admirers and he is thought of by a large following as the savior of his state.

Standing in front of the magnificent capitol building, which Huey Long's genius called into being with a swiftness reminded of the magic of Aladdin's lamp, and looking at the broad highways which he was instrumental in providing as replacement of dirt roads, it becomes easier to understand why this amazing man made himself such a powerful factor in his own state.

As Mussolini arose to meet a need in Italy, as Hitler sprang into power as a result of post-war conditions in Germany and as Stalin fitted himself into the picture in Russia, so it appears that Huey P. Long possessed peculiar qualities of leadership which made it possible for him to rise rapidly from poverty and obscurity to an unquestioned dictatorship during which he carried the state of Louisiana to tremendous material advancement that will continue long after his methods have been forgotten.

It is quite unlikely that Huey Long could have become an important public figure in any other state. In Louisiana, however, he appears to have met an urgent need, which has now passed. Therefore Huey has no successor as dictator and the public business of the state is flowing along in much more orthodox political channels, although still following a number of the progressive policies that he evolved.

CONSIDERING the 34-story capitol building, rising to a height of 450 feet of marble construction, and noting the completeness and artistry that enters into every part of the structure, there is a feeling of amazement that all of this could be done in so short a time as 14 months—start of construction was in January 1931 and completion in March 1933.

Now, in a rear hallway, almost in front of the door of the governor's office, the design of the floor tile has been changed so that a circle indicates the spot where Huey Long was shot to death by a political foe.

The people of Baton Rouge and of Louisiana believe that it is entirely fitting for the body of Long to rest forever in the beautifully landscaped garden in front of the $5,000,000 capitol which he inspired—as though all of it might constitute one vast memorial to him.

Near the simple marker on the grave is a long stone bench in which has been engraved, "A resting place for the friends of our friend."

FROM the observation tower rising above the 34th floor, there is a fine view of Baton Rouge and surrounding country—a small city being enlivened by the industrial growth that has been extending into some of these southern states during the past several years.

Richard W. Leche, 39-year-old present governor, has adopted the economic philosophy, "If we take care of industry, then industry will take care of us."

It was such an idea that inspired the constitutional amendment granting incoming industry a 10-year property tax exemption, with the result that more than $47,000,000 in new industrial development has been brought to the state in little more than a year, with payrolls expected to put millions of dollars of new money in circulation annually.

Some other states have been citing Governor Leche as providing an example of how industry can be encouraged by adoption of conciliatory policies, rather than regarding business as constantly able to meet increased taxes.

NOW that peace has been declared with the federal administration, Louisiana has been sharing munificently in WPA funds and Louisiana State university, here in Baton Rouge, is progressing remarkably as a result of continuance of friendly policies instituted by Huey Long, who became peeved at Tulane while he was governor and who started out to make L. S. U. eclipse the New Orleans institution.

From an enrollment of 1,500 in 1930 L. S. U. has jumped to a present enrollment of around 8,000, it being among Huey's ideas that in order to make "every man a king and every girl a queen," all should have opportunity to get an education under favorable auspices.

WITH a population approximating that of Mansfield, Baton Rouge has one of the largest oil refineries in the country, with a capacity of 100,000 gallons a day.

The old capitol building, erected in 1847, was set on fire by Union forces during the Civil war and was badly damaged. It was rebuilt in 1880 and continued in use until the new capitol was completed six years ago. It is now being remodeled to house federal offices.

* * *

Not far from here to New Orleans, they tell us. It might be worth while to drive down there and look around.

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Greet Life Smiling.

Rise up with songs upon your lips
And smiling greet the day;
This is a prelude to success,
Smile at your work and play.

For he who turns a smiling face
To life sees life smile back,
And he who wears a gloomy mein
The victory may lack.

These things are not a phantasy,
But truth we learn at last.
Joy matches joy, no surer thing
Is taught us by the past.

A smile is like a Midas touch,
To golden happiness
It turns all things, a talisman
With which to snare success.

Marion Mayor Tells Richland G. O. P. Paper Money Has Caused Inflation.

Criticizing the national administration's monetary policies, Dr. Frederick C. Smith, mayor of Marion, told members of the Richland County John Sherman club last night that if honesty and common sense can balance local government budgets, the same qualities can be combined to ballance the national budget.

Dr. Frederick, who addressed the county Republican group at the Moose hall, is serving his third term as mayor of Marion, one of the few cities in the state which is operating within its income.

He flayed the administration's change from "hard money" to paper money, charging that the move resulted in inflation and imposed additional hardships on the laboring man through higher living costs.

Approximately 100 persons attended last night's meeting which was in charge of Donald G. Ogden, president of the club. Wives of members were guests at the session.

Motion pictures of fishing and hunting trips were shown by John C. Friday and Carl Heilman of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association.

House Leaders Prepare For Tax Bill Revision Ballot.

WASHINGTON — (AP)—A close house vote was in prospect today on a proposal to eliminate a levy on family-owned and closely-held corporations, the most controversial section of the administration's tax revision bill.

Supporters of the measure expressed confidence the special tax would survive a bi-partisan attack, but they said the margin would be smaller than it has been on other amendments.

The bill would impose on companies having annual net incomes above $75,000 and owned by a family or a few individuals, 20 per cent surtax applicable to income remaining after other corporate taxes are paid and specific deductions taken.

County Livestock Judging Team Near Top In State Event.

A livestock judging team from Bellville and Butler high schools which competed in a state judging contest at Ohio State university, Columbus, placed 12th in the state, D. T. Friday, vocational instructor in the schools, had been informed today.

With 50 teams competing the percentage difference between the leaders was so slight that the Butler-Bellville combination was only a few points out of first place, Friday was told. Nine boys made up the Richland county team. The teams judge horses, cattle and hogs.

"There was no poison used. But since Gorky was weak, and only one-third of his lung were functioning, we undermined his health.

"Yagoda threatened me and the safety of my family."

Admitting he held anti-soviet views, Pletniov stated he would not have gone as far as criminal activities but for Yagoda's "threats," he added:

"My 40 years of professional work was without a blemish."

Train Brings Them From 'Trap' In Mountain Pass.

ALAMOSA, Colo. —(U.P.)— Sixteen men, stranded in a freight train on Lizzard Head Pass, 11,000 feet high in the San Miguel mountains, were brought here today by a rescue train.

The narrow gauge Rio Grande and Southern train carrying the men had been stalled for six days by drifts 10 to 20 feet deep.

During four of those days the men lived on a scant supply of rations found among the freight.

Family of Gospel Singers Gives Program Here

The Stauffer family of Wooster, gospel singers, will present a special musical program and service at 7:45 p. m. Thursday at the United Brethren church. The family includes Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Stauffer and their six daughters and one son. Their programs consist of solos, duets, trios, quartets and six-part choruses, as well as group songs.

In presenting some of their songs, the violin, piano and clarinet are used, but most of their singing is done without the aid of any accompaniment. The service here is being sponsored by the S. O. S. Sunday school class of the church.

Calls First Witnesses in Trial of Prison Farm Trusty.

ELYRIA—(AP)—The prosecution called its witnesses today in the first degree murder trial of Edward Hensley, colored prison farm trusty, after defense counsel assailed the triple "confession" snarl in pretty Louise Hornbeck's slaying.

The 19-year-old Grafton girl was criminally attacked and killed last Oct. 18 as she walked alone toward her home from a dentist's office where she was employed.

Two itinerant youths made "confessions" to Lorain county authorities. One was returned to Michigan, where he had been seized for a sex offense against a school girl. The other was adjudged insane.

AKRONITE GETS HIGHWAY POST

He'll Get $3,600 For Work He Doesn't 'Know Much About.'

COLUMBUS. —(INS)— Appointment of William B. Harn, of Akron, as public relations director for the highway department was announced today by Director John Jaster, jr., less than 24 hours after the position held by Harry Sparks had been abolished because of "no work."

Harn, an attorney, will receive a salary of $3,600 annually. Commenting on his appointment, Harn said:

"I don't know much about publicity and I can't say just now what I am going to do."

STRICKEN AT 62

Harry N. Koon, Perrysville Store Owner, Succumbs.

PERRYSVILLE — Death early this morning claimed Harry N. Koon, 62, Perrysville business man who for the past eight years has been proprietor of the Koon department store here. He had been ill for several weeks.

Mr. Koon came to Perrysville from Brimfield where he operated a grain elevator for a number of years. He was a member of the Reformed church at Akron and the Moose lodge.

Surviving are his wife, Mamie; two daughters, Mrs. Alice Bidinger and Miss Florence Koon, of Perrysville; a brother, F. C., of Brimfield; a sister, Mrs. Jennie Gouldin, of Ravenna, and one grandchild.

The body was removed to the Byerly funeral home at Lucas where it will remain until Thursday morning, when it will be taken to the home. Funeral services will be held at the home at 11:30 a. m. Friday and at 2 p. m. at the Methodist church at Brimfield.

cessible to subpoena servers and has offered no statement.

His firm was quickly suspended from the stock exchange for insolvency.

Stunned by the news, Wall Street today was still trying to penetrate the mystery surrounding the company's sudden failure, officially admitted in a voluntary bankruptcy petition filed in federal court.

Assistant Attorney General A. V. McCall, in charge of the bureau of securities, questioned Henry D. Mygatt, partner and floor member of the firm, and Robert J. Rosenthal, the cashier.

He said a "rigid inquiry" would be pressed, but added:

"I do not believe that all of the partners were aware of the situation."

Whitney has long been active as a broker for the house of Morgan.

The New York stock exchange, announcing the suspension, stated it had discovered on March 1, 1938, "evidence of conduct apparently contrary to just and equitable principles of trade.'

This is the most severe citation within the power of the exchange.

Whitney's fellow members of the exchange board of governors were called upon to conduct the investigation that resulted in the suspension order.

LAST SESSION IN SCOUT COURSE

Leaders to Review Work of Past Eight Weeks Tonight.

The final session of the scoutmasters' training course, held weekly for the past eight weeks, will be held at 7:30 p. m. today at scout headquarters in the Elks' building.

Each week a different phase of scouting has been studied. Tonight a general review of the entire course will be given. These weekly sessions have been in charge of Philip Smith, district commissioner.

Twenty-one scoutmasters and assistants have been attending the sessions. They will be given training certificates showing that they have successfully completed the prescribed work.

Los Angeles Hauls Out Pots and Pans To Boil All Water

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—In pots and pans on kitchen stoves, residents of this city of 1,380,000 boiled their drinking water today. The sewer system broke under the strain of last week's flood, and the water supply is contaminated, though whether from the sewer, is not yet known.

Until the cause is discovered, Dr. George Parrish, city health officer, warned all persons to boil their drinking water. Orders were to serve and use only boiled water.

Dr. Parrish said contamination of the municipal water supply was discovered in Highland park, on the east side toward Pasadena, and in a large area of southwestern Los Angeles.

Sewers paralleling the water mains were found to have burst. Dr. Parrish said it had not been established whether there had been seepage from sewer to water mains, but he warned that there was danger of this.

A mild epidemic of stomach disorders swept the city.

HEART BLAMED

Woman Dies At Cemetery While Attending Rites for Nephew.

FINDLAY—(INS)—A heart attack induced by asthma was blamed today for the death of Mrs. Emma Poe, 79, of Rittman, who was stricken while attending the funeral of a nephew, Clyde Moorhead. She died at the cemetery before hospital attendants reached her.

TRAFFIC FINES IN LAST MONTH SET NEW HIGH

819 Drivers Pay $1 Each For Violations, Twice Number of Previous Record.

Mansfield autoists paid a record total of $819 to the police department during February for traffic violations, establishing a new all-time high, a report of collections for the month showed today.

The 819 who paid $1 each for traffic violations were nearly twice the number who received tags during February, 1937, when $476 was collected. Payments made during January, 1938, totaled $329.

Total For Year $1,148.

Last month's figures brings to $1,148 the amount collected by the department since the first of the year, or nearly $200 more than the total for the last six months of 1937.

At the present rate of collection, a total of $6,000 would be set in 1938 which will more than double any amount ever collected in traffic fines in Mansfield for a 12-month period

The record month collection was boosted by the police department's lightless campaign which hit its stride the first week of the month, but fell off considerably during the last week when only $43 was taken in.

Court Dissolves Injunctions In Four Utility Actions.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—A three-judge District of Columbia federal court has dissolved four preliminary injunctions restraining the Public Works administration from granting funds to municipalities for power projects.

The injunctions were those of the Metropolitan Edison company, the Tennessee Electric Power company, and the Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power company The latter concerned two separate power projects

The decision noted that the companies based their plea for continuance of the injunctions on a contention that their cases differed from that of the Alabama Power and Duke Power company cases in which the U. S. supreme court upheld PWA's right to make grants.

However, the three-judge court rejected the utilities' contention

City Invited To Join In Airmail's 20th Anniversary

The possibility of Mansfield participating in the celebration of the 20th anniversary of the airmail service May 15-21 was seen today by Postmaster Herman E Homberger

Homberger said he had been notified by the postoffice department that all cities over 45,000 population, off the regular air mail route had been invited to participate in the event

Tentative plans call for the enlisting of several private pilots to fly airmail between here and other Ohio cities on regular airmail routes during the week.

Two carriers in the employ of the Mansfield department, Henry Cummings and Leroy Myers, who hold private pilot's licenses, may be selected to carry the mail in connection with the event, Homberger added

United Press dispatches said that the postoffice department had authorized each state to issue a special stamp for the occasion.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Wednesday, March 9— "We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced." Read Matthew 11: 16-19.

Without little children, through whom its meaning was so often made plain, the teaching of Jesus would be much more obscure than it now is. But the Gospels distinguish between childlikeness and childishness—two very different things.

This familiar passage is the classical statement of the stubborn childishness of the grown-up world. Jesus sees a group of wrangling children in the streets who cannot make up their minds what to play. One half wants to play wedding, and the other half wants to play funeral. They cannot agree because of the innate tendency of children to say "No" to any suggestion made to them.

Each of us knows persons whose instant reaction to any proposition whatsoever is negative. Their habitual "nay-saying" must cost them much happiness and, what is more important, much usefulness. The moral struggle requires us on many an occasion to say, "No." But the spiritual life expects us ultimately to say, "Yes." If that be so, most of us will have to outgrow the childish habit of chronic dissent which so persistently besets us.

Prayer: Deliver us, O God, from wilful waywardness, and vouchsafe to us an instant readiness to yield ourselves in accord to thy gentlest invitation or thy sternest summons; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

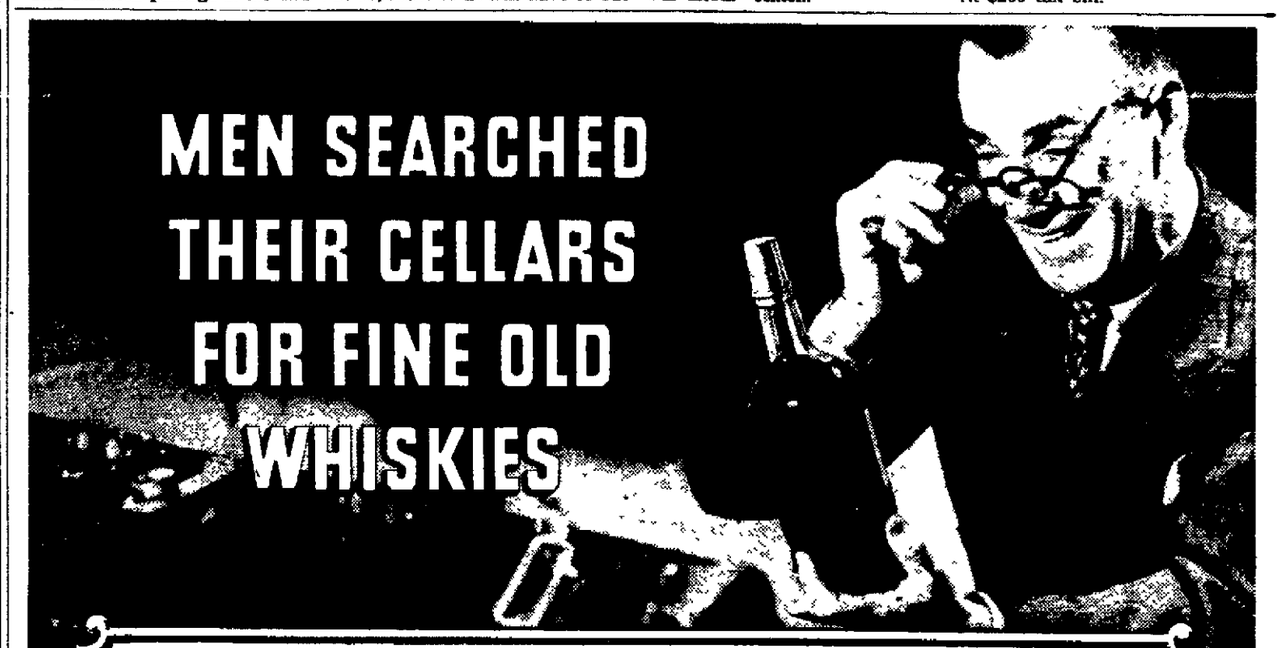
"Patronize a Friendly Neighbor"



So Seagram could prove that Crowns taste finer than the most famous blended whiskies of the old days

$25—for each sealed, unopened bottle...is the price Seagram offered for bona fide blends bottled before 1919! Then Seagram asked its qualified experts to compare these old blends...side by side with 5 and 7 Crown.

Unanimously these men agreed: "Crowns are finer tasting, smoother, mellower."

Blending skill explains it. Seagram has searched the world to single out the few master blenders capable of producing that unrivalled Crown taste. A taste so fine that—since 1934, over 129 million bottles of Crowns have been sold—quarts, pints, all sizes.

At the bar or wherever you buy—think before you drink...say Seagram's and be sure.
